OUR aim in the past has been, and our intentions in the future are, to keep well-made and thoroughly well-seasoned FURNITURE at prices within the reach of all.

We are enabled, keeping as we do such an immense Stock of Furniture, to furnish completely a house of any magnitude within a period of three days or less.

OUR efforts are equally suited to the cottage as to the mansion.

Those commencing housekeeping or coming for the first time to Sydney, should pay us a visit of inspection, and obtain a rough estimate of the probable cost of furnishing a house.

A mere newspaper paragraph is not sufficient to enable any one to form any idea of the moderate prices we are now asking for Furniture and Bedsteads, we can only invite a personal visit.

ALL GOODS ARE MARKED IN PLAIN FIGURES.

The price asked is in all cases the only price taken, and this feature, which is a strict one in our business, must commend itself to all.

DRAWING-ROOM SUITES of NINE PIECES.

Our stock is large, never less than one hundred at one time. Prices range from One Hundred and Fifty Pounds to Thirteen Guineas. We do not keep rubbish. Judging by the price, our Suite at Thirteen Guineas may be considered too cheap to be good. This is not the case. The Suite at this price would in other houses be marked £20, and then be considered cheap.

It need hardly be said that our Suites continue in range £15 15s, £18 18s, £25, and so on.

Most of these Suites are represented in our catalogue, which can be had on application.

THE CARRINGTON DRAWING-ROOM SUITE.

This suite is our own special make. No other house in town has the same. The frames are elegant and chaste, the material with which it is covered, plush and trimmings, are deliciously blended, and the tout ensemble is the essence of refinement and good taste. It is difficult without illustration to describe this charming little bijou suite, and it would be idle by mere description to endeavour to give an idea of what this suite is like. All that we can do is to acquaint the public of the following facts, and to solicit the favour of a special visit of inspection:—The suite is manufactured in our own workshops in Kent-street under personal supervision. The frames, stuffing, material, and labour employed are of the best description, and the price of the suite is £26 15s.

DRAWING-ROOM CABINETS.

Our variety is endless. Prices here range from Eight to Two Hundred Guineas. All lovers of fine arts should closely inspect the Satinwood Cabinet we were exhibiting at the Mechanical Exhibition. The majority of observers will, in this piece of furniture, find much food for reflection in the beauty of wood, in the marqueterie inserted in the panels and on the frieze, and in the details generally.

PROFESSOR KRUMBEIN
requests the honour of a visit to his studio, 52, WYNYARD-SQUARE,
which is open from 9 till 5.
[Extract from "Sydney Morning Herald."]
"The artists of Sydney have received a valuable acquisition to their ranks in the person of Professor C. S. Krumbein, a gentleman who has arrived here by the Rome. Since his arrival here he has completed portraits of some Sydney ladies and gentlemen, and he has established a studio at 52, Wynyard-square, where his works are now on view. The portraits, which are done in pencil, are marked with an attention to detail which is admirable. The strong points in connection with them are the faces, which are finished in the most delicate manner, and glow with animation. The features are well defined, and seem anatomically perfect. The eyes have a lifelike sparkle in them that is only rarely produced in pencil, and then only by a master hand. Professor Krumbein studied at Dusseldorf, Munich, and Rome under celebrated masters, and was called to Berlin to execute portraits of the German Imperial family. He was decorated by the Emperor with the highest order for art, and was appointed professor at the Academy at Dusseldorf."
No sitting is necessary, as a perfect likeness can be taken from photo.—either carte or cabinet.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS:

W. S. MORT, Esq., Sydney.
J. G. M. WILD, Esq., Solicitor, Sydney.

SOLICITORS:
Messrs. WANT, JOHNSON, and CO.,
Hunter-street.

BROKER:
JOSIAH MULLENS,
92, Pitt-street.

This Property consists of 14 acres, held from the Crown on Mineral Lease, and situate on the Tuross River, about 13 miles north-west of the Dromedary Mountain, 23 miles from Cobargo, and 10 miles from "The Gulph Nerrigundah," the seat of a rich alluvial goldfield about 25 years ago. The course of the reef appears to run right through the lease, a distance of about 1540 feet.

The ground has been fairly tested by a shaft sunk on the reef, near the river, depth 30 feet, which shaft carried gold all the way down. A little higher up the hill a plat has been cut out and an adit driven into the hill along the course of the reef for a distance of 167 feet. Within this adit or tunnel, and about 25 feet from its mouth, a winze has been sunk on the reef, 30 feet to water level, carrying good gold the whole way down. The reef varies from 4 inches to 2 feet 6 inches, and is good clean quartz, with slate similar to the famous Hill End stone. Picked specimens show gold freely, but some quartz which showed little trace of gold was assayed by Mr. W. A. Dixon, and gave a return of 23oz. to the ton. A sample of about 80lb. weight, unpicked, was sent to the Mint for crushing, and yielded (as per assay herewith) 56½oz. to the ton. Mr. Hunt, the manager, reports that there is a large quantity of similar stone ready to be taken out from the bottom of the winze, as soon as pumping machinery is available to keep the works dry.

The report of S. Herbert Cox, Esq., and that of a gentleman who proceeded to the mine privately to inspect it, and which may be seen at the Broker's office, will furnish full details.

The advice of Mr. Cox has been followed and the reef proved since his visit to the mine more than twice the distance then reported.

It is estimated that a Battery of 10 head of Stampers, with water power to work the Battery, and keep the Mine dry by pumping, can be erected and at work for a sum not exceeding £3000.

There is ample water-power in the Tuross River, in the driest seasons, for working 20 head of Stampers, with a pressure of 150 feet of fall from the dam. The use of water-power instead of steam will effect a great saving in the working expenses. The sites for the Dam and the Machinery, and all water rights, have been secured.

Before erecting the machinery it is proposed to spend £500 in opening up the reef, by driving the tunnel along the course of the reef for a further distance of 200 or 250 feet, to meet a shaft to be sunk on the reef from Dry Creek, and to prospect in depth by another winze to be sunk to water-level in the adit. This will prove a very large body of stone in sight, and will justify the erection of machinery without further delay.

The whole of the work has been carried out by Mr. W. A. Hunt, one of the proprietors, and a mining engineer of large New Zealand experience.

The capital is very small, and the proprietors take as purchase-money for their interest 5000 shares fully paid up to £1. The contributing shares are 5000 in number, and liable to the full amount of 20s each, but no more will be called up than will suffice for the above work and for the erection of a complete plant, after which the mine, if its present promise be sustained, will find its own capital, and the shares all rank alike for dividends.

The uncalled contributing capital will be reserved to meet contingencies.

The calls are purposely made very easy, and as only 50 shareholders of 100 shares each are required to fill the list, an early application is necessary.

The Company is put on a modest basis to meet the times, and is a fair and honest prospecting company of ample promise.

The costs of floating and registering the company will be a first charge on its assets.

If the Company is not formed, all the deposits will be returned in full.

Applications, accompanied by a cheque for the first instalment of 2s 6d per share, must be sent in to Mr. Josiah Mullens, the Broker to the Company, 92, Pitt-street. No application will be entertained under 20 shares.

The shares will be allotted according to priority of application.

APPENDIX No. 2.
Technical College, Sydney,
May 13, 1886.

Messrs. W. A. Hunt and Others.

Gentlemen,—Having, as requested, visited and examined your property, near Wandella, known as the "Tuross Gold-Mining Claim," I have much pleasure in submitting my report on the ground:—

Position of the Claim.—The Claim at present comprises an area of fourteen acres. It is four hundred feet wide, and extends from the banks of the Tuross River south to Dry Creek and Tinpot Creek, as shown in the accompanying sketch plan.

The only work of importance which has been undertaken is situated on the banks of the Tuross River, at which point the main workings of the mine have been carried on; and of these I shall speak separately.

The reef strikes, approximately, N. S., but veers slightly to the eastward, and, if it preserves its course, should pass through your property from one end to the other.

Both Dry Creek and Tinpot Creek were worked many years ago for alluvial gold, and a large quantity extracted, the wash being very rich for some distance from their respective mouths, but not payable in the higher part of the creeks; and, in each case, the rich gold has cut off near the line at which this reef should have crossed the creeks.

In Tinpot Creek itself there are indications of a reef, but it is impossible to be certain of its course, since it is found in the bed of the creek itself, and has not been prospected at all.

Near Dry Creek there is a well-defined quartz leader, 10 inches wide, striking E. 10° N., which is thus a cross reef in the claim; but gold has not, hitherto, been found in it, and work is not being prosecuted there at present.

In a number of other instances these leaders of quartz have been struck chiefly following an E.W. course, but none of these have been followed or sunk on, and the only prospecting of value up to the present time is that carried on at the mine.

The Workings.—At the mine itself a drive has been entered along the course of the reef for a length of 60 feet (now 167ft. 8in.), and a winze sunk 25 feet from the mouth of the drive to a depth of 30 feet, while about 20 feet beyond the mouth of the tunnel a shaft was formerly sunk by Mr. W. Motby, to a depth of over 30 feet.

In these workings gold was carried along the drive for the first 25 feet, beyond which, although the walls and channel of the lode are as well defined as ever, neither quartz nor gold appeared until the night before I arrived, when quartz was struck in the face, and the lode now appears to be improving in quality, and good reports may be expected from the mine. At the end of the first 25 feet the winze was sunk and carried quartz with rich gold, from the tunnel level to the bottom of the winze, and at the time of my visit gold was showing very freely at the bottom.

The reef varies in width from 4 inches to 2 feet, but a good deal of this is composed of slate or mullock at places, and the quartz has never yet been found over 13 inches in width, and seldom more than 8 inches, and it pinches and widens from time to time.

The stone, which has been crushed at the Sydney Mint, yielding 56ozs. 12¾dwts. of gold per ton from 3 qrs. of quartz, was taken from the richest part of the mine, but was not dressed in any way, so that the return was a fair one of that particular part of the reef.

At the bottom of the winze the quartz is about 8 inches wide, and shows gold very freely, so the prospects of this part of the mine may be looked upon as exceptionally good.

Future Workings.—As regards the future workings of the mine there is comparatively little to be said. At present the most important work is to be found in the continuation of the tunnel along the course of the reef, which is being prosecuted with all vigor. On the prospects met with in this tunnel the ultimate value of the mine will largely depend, and, bearing in mind the fact that both Dry Creek and Tinpot Creek have probably been fed by stone from this reef, it is more than probable that shoots of gold will be struck in the drive.

Water Supply.—The Tuross River, which flows past the mine, contains a never-failing supply of water, which will prove invaluable in the event of the mine being developed. Not only can this water be used for ordinary dressing work, but, if Mr. Hunt's levels are correct, the water could be brought to the top of the hill in which the reef is situated, and there, with a small dam, could be used to drive a turbine for working the machinery, or even, if necessary, for pumping the mine. I had no opportunity of checking Mr. Hunt's levels when there, but have no reason to doubt their accuracy.

Summary.—In conclusion, I would wish to point out that although the prospects of the mine, so far as developed, are very good, there is not yet sufficient stone in sight to warrant the erection of a crushing plant, and a further expenditure on the mine itself will have yet to be undertaken, but, while this is the case, the prospects are so good as fully to warrant this expenditure, with every probability of success.
Yours faithfully,
S. HERBERT COX, F.C.S., F.G.S.,
Consulting Mining Engineer.

This Company is now being formed for the purchase from the present proprietors of all rights in New South Wales to the use of Burt's improved method for disinfecting nightsoil, house refuse, abattoir and sewerage matter, and extracting therefrom, and converting same into marketable commodities, and to erect the necessary works for the carrying on of same.

The patentee of this process is Mr. T. C. Burt, who is now carrying out this scheme in New Zealand, with great profit to himself, and to the entire satisfaction of the Municipal Authorities, which is the best guarantee as to its efficiency.

The great recommendation of this method over all others is its simplicity, and the fact that in addition to deodorising and disinfecting nightsoil, it also treats with house garbage, and all other refuse. And the Patentee claims to have discovered the truest disinfectant yet known, which not only deodorises but arrests all putrefactive fermentation, and does not in any way destroy the fertilising properties of the manure by extracting the most essential quality, viz., Ammonia.

Testimonials of the practical tests of the manures manufactured by this process, and samples of same may now be seen at the Office of the Company.

The merchantable products resulting from the process are Ammonia, and a Guano without the addition of bulky dryers.

The following reports from the most eminent English and New Zealand professors are of such a character that comment is unnecessary:—

COPY OF EXTRACT OF LETTER FROM SIR THOMAS WATSON, F.R.S., Professor of Chemistry, England, to
Mr. T. C. BURT, Dunedin.

Sir,—I find your disinfectant acts more rapidly and produces a better effect in purifying Nightsoil than any that I have tried yet. Any other chemical that I have tried did not prevent putrefactive fermentation from setting in, but your disinfectant arrests fermentation in any liquid to which it is added in sufficient quantity.

Your Chemical is the truest disinfectant yet known. It will not destroy the properties of the manure, but simply deodorises it. I can highly recommend it to farmers; it is much better than guano. It will produce three successful crops, and it is also excellent for top-dressing.

There is no doubt this preparation contains valuable ingredients.
Yours faithfully,
THOMAS WATSON.

RESULT OF AN ANALYSIS BY PROFESSOR BLACK, ANALYTICAL CHEMIST TO THE NEW ZEALAND GOVERNMENT.

1. The muriate of lime present amounting to 5 per cent. of the whole is soluble in water, and therefore available as a source of lime food to plants, at the same time being a very deliquescent substance. It has an attraction for moisture that keeps everything damp with which it is in contact.
2. The nitrogenous matter contains as much nitrogen as will gradually form ammonia equal to about 5 per cent. on the whole manure, or 9·5 per cent. of ammonia salts. This is about the same percentage as is contained in many phosphatic guanos.
3. The phosphoric acid is small in amount.
4. The 29 per cent. of carbonate of lime is a valuable source of lime for many years to the growing plants.
5. The alkaline salts present, being small in amount, are not of much consequence.
6. The substance has been well dried and well deodorised.
7. The ammonia has been thoroughly arrested by the acid treatment, and, lastly, the excess of acid has been carefully killed by the carbonate of lime.

I can highly recommend it to all city councils for the great benefit it will have to the health of the inhabitants.
Yours faithfully,
(Signed) J. BLACK.

Town Hall, Dunedin,
July 8th, 1886.

This is to certify that Mr. Burt's process of converting nightsoil into a manure has been tried here with very considerable success.

The members of the Works Committee of the City Council visited Mr. Burt's works while he was treating the soil, and were very greatly pleased at the entire absence of any disagreeable fumes arising during the process.

The Dunedin City Council has accepted Mr. Burt's method in preference to the others for the disposal of the nightsoil of the city.
Yours very truly,
(Signed) A. SCOULLAR, Mayor.

Dunedin, 23rd June, 1886.

Mr. Thos. Burt has applied to us for a testimonial as to the effectiveness and success of his scheme of treating Nightsoil. We have pleasure in stating the system is a thoroughly practical one, and would refer further to the evidence of the members of the City Council of Dunedin, who inspected same in operation.
Yours faithfully,
(Signed) OAKDEN and BEGG, Sanitary Engineers.

Dunedin, 9th June, 1886.

Mr. Burt, Dear Sir,—In reply to your letter of yesterday re manufacture of Nightsoil in accordance with your method, some months ago I saw some material at the Anderson's Bay works, prepared by you for the inspection of our Council, which material was very satisfactory. There was no nuisance whatever about the place.
Yours truly,
(Signed) S. H. MIRAMS, City Surveyor.

The Company will purchase the patent rights to the process in the colony of New South Wales from the proprietors for £12,500, £2000 only of which is required in cash; the balance will be taken in fully paid-up shares, and a written agreement in accordance with the provisions of the Companies Act evidencing the transaction will be executed and filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies at or before the issue of the shares.

The remaining 19,500 shares are offered to the public for £1 each on the following terms—viz., 2s 6d per share on application, 2s 6d per share on allotment, the balance in calls of not more than 1s per share per month, the first call not to be made until three months after date of incorporation.

The capital thus subscribed will be devoted in the first instance to the payment of £2000 to the proprietors of patent, and in the next place to the purchase or leasing of a suitable site near Sydney, and erecting thereon a plant capable of treating 500 tons per week, which would also suffice to accommodate several of the largest suburban municipalities, and also for the purchase or leasing of sites in various towns and districts, and erecting thereon plants suitable for their requirements.

In dealing with this scheme, and the solution of a problem of such magnitude, it is difficult to estimate with any degree of accuracy, the profits that may ultimately arise, but the following statement will serve to show the profits derivable from the sale of the manufactured article produced by a plant such as that referred to above (irrespective of those for the right to deposit nightsoil and garbage to be received from the various Borough Councils or their contractors). Fortunately, the promoters are enabled to do this, not on theory, but from a practical knowledge of the scheme now in operation in New Zealand.

When it is considered the Company are purchasing the right to treat with the country districts, and all the towns and cities in the colony of New South Wales, it must be admitted that the public have now an opportunity of investing in one of the safest ventures ever submitted to them, and that those who are fortunate enough to secure the first issue of shares will speedily (if so disposed) be in a position to realise a large profit on their outlay. The promoters therefore with every confidence ask their hearty co-operation in this matter.

The only object the proprietors have for disposing of their patent is to infuse more capital into the concern, and believing that the scheme can be worked with greater advantage in the form of a Company than by private enterprise.

The preliminary expenses of advertising and brokerage to be paid by the promoters, and in event of Company not being floated the application money will be returned in full.

Prompt application for Shares is necessary, as the list will close on an early date.

We have been told by a not-by-any-means small section of those critical dames, the ladies of Sydney, that are more than ever attractive this season, and the more we endeavour to test the value of such an opinion, the more we are inclined to fall in with it. The Millinery is certainly nice, the STRAWS are far above the average in variety and prettiness, and below it in price. The SHOW CASES—upon which, by the way, we pride ourselves—are more beautifully filled than ever, and there is an air of superiority and fashionable elegance about the whole thing that satisfies us in a most irresistible way that the fair critics before mentioned are only contributing one more little item to the records of PLEASANT TRUTHS, when they say what they do about these much-talked-about Showrooms of ours.

From time to time we endeavour to pick out special goods to bring under the notice of our friends, and it sometimes puzzles us where to begin. Where everything is lovely it is difficult to choose, and the eye wanders doubtfully from one part of the room to another. Now some exquisite little CHILDREN'S COSTUMES seem worthy of more than ordinary notice; then a lovely show of ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS makes us waver in uncertainty; again, half-a-dozen or so sweet little BONNETS, fairy-like combinations of earthly skill and ethereal loveliness, are forced upon our attention; further on, a case full of delicious little HATS for tiny children arrests our steps, so that by the time we get to the point we started from we are as much in a quandary as ever—not from any doubt about the opinions expressed by our fair friends, but as to which or what we ought to choose for particular commendation.

To-day, however, we wish to say a word or two about our truly lovely show of LADIES' MANTLES and COSTUMES.

First of all, and you will see that we go in for comfort quite as much as show, we are now showing the loveliest lot of DUST COATS ever offered for a lady's choice. They are in Lustre, Beige, China Silk, and Figured Silks—there are no end of them, they are specially chosen by our home buyers, and advised to us as quite out of the common, and we commence in price as low as 8s 9d.

Our honest advice to our lady friends is, to come and see this very nice lot of DUST COATS.

And now let us lay the dust with something truly elegant, and for that purpose we shall quote a line or two in LACE and SILK MANTLES. The fashions this year are of a decidedly attractive character, the shapes pretty, trimmings arranged upon a plan of true taste, and altogether the season's MANTLES are a credit alike to those who sell the fashions and to those who make up the goods.

OTTOMAN SILK MANTLES.—We don't know that we can do much more for these than say how pretty they are, how perfectly shaped, material and trimmings accord, and that our lowest price is 23s 6d, at which low figure we are prepared with SOMETHING of a very startling nature.

LACE MANTLES.—These in beautiful and a most bewildering variety, in Chantilly and other laces, at prices ranging from 22s 6d upwards.

SPANISH LACE MANTLES.—Here we shine indeed, for of all pretty and becoming Mantles these are the prettiest and most becoming. We have some decided novelties in style and shape, and the lowest price we can quote is 37s 6d, and it will be at once confessed that this is indeed low enough for such truly lovely goods.

BEADED CANVAS MANTLES.—Here novelty, elegance, and fashion are combined, and our unrivalled show of these magnificent garments—if we may call them by such an odious name—has deservedly called forth a chorus of praise. Our lowest, 21s 9d.

BEADED CAPES in Broche, Ottoman, Beaded Canvas, Lace, and Cashmere. These are very beautiful and tasteful, and very cheap, for as low as 7s we have the prettiest of capes.

JERSEYS in BLACK and COLOURS.—Fashionable as ever are these nice Jackets, and two particular lines at 3s 9d and 4s 11d are a perpetual theme for admiring critics.

We must not forget to say one word about our New Costumes, even at the risk of encroaching as aforesaid.

PRINT COSTUMES.—These are goods of every day want, everybody requires one, two, three, or even half a dozen, therefore we have prepared accordingly. Our stock is very large, the assortment perfect, the materials good, the patterns excellent, the style A1, and the lowest price is 6s 9d.

SATEEN SKIRTS from 21s to 45s. We all know how fashionable COTTON GOWNS have been at home; well, these are reproductions of the very best of those that have been high in favour. The fashion gives full skirts, prettily kilted, drapery in all kinds of fantastic conceits, trimmings of white ecru, cream and other coloured laces, and the whole thing is a credit to those who started the rage for COTTON GOWNS.

OUR MELBOURNE LETTER.

MELBOURNE, SEPT. 22.

On Tuesday afternoon 91 learned persons met in the Assembly Hall, Collins-street east, to consider the inexpediency of salaried officers of the University sitting on the council of that body. Of these 91, 57 declared that it was quite right and proper that they should so sit. Nobody denies the right of the 57 to make such a declaration, and no reasonable person would deny the right of the 34 to assert the contrary. But the odd feature in this discussion was the fervour with which the 57 denounced the 34 who had ventured to ask if there were not a kind of indecency in men sitting upon an executive body to vote their own salaries and review the conduct of their colleagues. One would have thought that, at any rate, in expressing their dissent from the opinion of the minority they would have done so with dignity, if not with gentleness. But they were neither dignified nor gentle in their disagreement; they shouted loudly, and did their exceedingly bad best to prevent the other side from having a voice at all. They insisted upon making a personal matter of it, and charged the minority with endeavouring to do a direct wrong to Dr. Hearn, the Chancellor, when all the time their antagonists disavowed in the strongest manner any personal motive whatever.

This passionate disposition may have been due to the same presumably magnetic influence which has set people killing themselves and each other, and sometimes both. A case of this latter kind occurred on Monday, when an oysterman—not in this instance "tender-hearted"—cut his own throat after doing the same for his wife, a beautiful woman, and by all accounts good. As usual, liquor had a considerable share in the business. It was the very old story of love and liquor, and in this instance there was a good deal of both.

In another case of self-destruction the victim dealt with himself by poison, and there seems to have been no exact opinion formed as to what poison he used. It was clearly some subtle neurotic alkaloid, which left no trace of its presence. That is to say, no trace save to the skilled chemical expert. And as Mr. William Johnson, the Government analyst, is ill, and cannot do any testing process just now, the jury were thrown back on conjecture, and, accordingly, they did not conjecture. The romantic element in this case is derived from the circumstance that the poor young man was a clever architect, who had sent in a design for the projected new Women's Hospital without any expectation of its being accepted. Being in money difficulties—of a very trifling nature, however, but yet to him apparently formidable—he went into a field and ended his life and troubles just about the same moment when the committee appointed to judge of the designs sent in chose his design. It is said that if he had had the least conception that his design would be accepted it would have changed the whole current of his life. He was a fine handsome young man too, and intelligent withal.

The prevalent mania has also taken the form of prompting some people to break into gaol. One man was caught flagrante delicto, and the others are being looked for. The only motive for this curious burglary appears to have been carpenters' tools. But this is only conjecture. Probably some more romantic motive will be found. It is much hoped that it will be so, for it is hard if one cannot distil a little poetry out of such a daring exploit.

It is an odd thing that this breaking into gaol should have happened at a time when the gaol has been found to be so full that 50 of the lodgers have had to be provided with quarters in some of the country prisons. This crowding has revived the project of having the gaol removed. But, in truth, there is always some scheme simmering to pull down large buildings. At this moment a large number of people are earnestly entreating the Government to take down and rebuild somewhere the Benevolent Asylum, the Kew Lunatic Asylum, the Melbourne Hospital, and the Melbourne Gaol. The Government listen to these entreaties, and do not regard them. They could all be made to suffice for the next 10, and perhaps 20 years, by a little mending and lustrating. But this would not suit the clamourers, who want the buildings down in order to make work for contractors, mechanics, and labourers. With one large job the Government have just made a sort of commencement—namely, with the alterations to the General Post Office. Accordingly, scaffolding is being raised, and enclosures are being fenced in, and for the next two years the works at the base of this much-frequented building will be a perpetual nuisance, from the chipping of stone, the carting of bricks, the mixing of mortar, and the crashing of timber. But we are disposed to tolerate the infliction on account of the improvement that is to be effected. The structure will be made a really stately one, and the squat-tower, which for five and twenty years has been an eyesore, is to be raised to the height that the obligations of proportion demand.

The other building—namely, the Houses of Parliament—so long an affront in its bare, unfinished walls to the decently disciplined eye, is beginning to show progress upwards towards long delayed completeness. In a few weeks the brickwork of the new gables will be hidden by fluted Corinthian columns, and, by the end of next year, it is believed the topstone will be brought on with the customary shouting. To mark the occasion of having begun to finish the building, there is to be a grand ceremony on the 1st proximo of laying, what by a now generally recognised fiction is termed, a "foundation-stone." One thousand distinguished persons are to be invited to witness this "well and truly" laying, and, of course, there will be much speaking and eating and drinking, and paying of compliments, and gratulations upon the progress of the colony and our great future and present glory.

It seems not unlikely that Prince's Bridge, the improved Post Office, and the completed Houses of Parliament will be finished about the same time, and if they would only make an effort they might have the new Anglican Cathedral finished also. There might, consequently, be a great high festival by way of celebrating all four openings, unless the inclusion of the cathedral would hurt some people's sensibilities, which it would. Concerning less perennial structures the new Alexandra Theatre is to be opened on the 1st of next month also, and its opening will represent a new departure in the Victorian drama, for not only is the theatre new, but the projector and manager are both new to the Melbourne public, and most of the company selected are very new. Many predictions are ventured concerning the probable future of this new venture. The bulk of the prophecies are unfavourable. In this case the unknown does not excite wonder, but doubt. Not that there is any sort of dissatisfaction at the venture, for it is thought, and rightly, that the prospect of competition is a hopeful sign, both for public, for actors, and for play-writers; but it does not seem quite certain that those who have started this competition are exactly the right people to carry it to a successful result. We shall see.

A bill has been read a first time in the Legislative Council having for its object to prevent people from insisting upon being shot. It is found that when rifle practice is going on there is a determination on the part of the public to cross the line of fire. If it were always the case that the right people were shot, this obstinacy might prove a public benefit. But it seems that apart from this wilfulness of incurring danger, these self-constituted targets are often estimable persons and useful members of society, and in a limited community like this it is not desirable to have valuable citizens cut off in the flower of their age. Colonel Sargood's bill, therefore, is intended to provide for taking these excellent persons prisoners and exacting from them money acknowledgments of their rashness. It is not thought that the measure will pass the Assembly, as it is considered that any attempt to curtail the suicidal freedom of the public would operate harshly, and indeed the prohibition, it is believed, might haply urge them into a determination to be shot, and so the legislation would defeat itself.

Another bill has been introduced into the Council to consolidate the Justices of the Peace Statute. Among much new matter it contains is a clause the practical effect of which will be to make getting into debt more difficult. This intention is looked upon by quite a large number of exceedingly worthy persons as an extreme hardship. For it is said that the difficulties in this direction are already quite great enough, often indeed virtually insurmountable, and when people are short of money and want things which cannot be had without either money or credit, what remains for them but to get into debt? This clause it is hoped will never become law.

NEW ZEALAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WELLINGTON, SEPT. 20.

Does any Australian town possess a man equal in modesty to a gentleman of the name of Brown, who is the Mayor of this city, and who positively declines to stand for re-election, because he fears that he might be knighted on the occasion of the Queen's Jubilee? Mr. Brown says there are many more fit to be knighted than he is, inferring that he is only moderately fit. Anyhow, he is determined to put himself out of the way of temptation—of which there is probably little danger. If the mayoral knighting comes off, it is to be hoped this town will be passed over. It is not at all a capital city in the sense that the other colonial capitals are; there are other New Zealand towns more than double as large; and the class of men elected mayors here is, through a combination of local circumstances, not at all a suitable one to recruit distinguished orders from. However, we rejoice in the possession of a man who can decline by anticipation a problematical honour. Some Australians who may hanker after handles to their names may see this fine example in the flesh, for he responds to the Mayor of Sydney's invitation.

We shall strongly object to getting any more K.C.M.G.'s for a long time, for some of the present ones do not turn out at all satisfactory; in fact, some of them are very poor samples. Even the Premier himself, whose title is hardly warm, has disgusted lots of his erstwhile Radical adorers, because he seems to want such lots of wind between them and his new nobility. Thus, just after being "capped" himself, he presided at an University "capping" meeting in Dunedin, and when, during his dry remarks, some students displayed a little of their proverbial exuberance, Sir Robert fumed, and hectored, and talked very big about calling in the police, whereupon a large number went out in a body, and returned when he sat down. Of course, this touchiness has brought on the Premier lots of ridicule. Then, at Christchurch, the "unemployed" got an idea that he was shirking the reception of a deputation from them, and burnt a shocking bad effigy of him. Sir Robert feuded off a former deputation with a big dose of political economy, that was not palatable to men who said they were starving; possibly, he thinks he cannot repeat that stroke, and so kept out of the way. This exclusiveness and the knighting may be only a coincidence, but we never used to hear of "Mr." Stout doing these things, though he did lots of foolish things in other ways.

Then that other very distinguished K.C.M.G., our great financier, has been burning his fingers at libel actions, and has been laughed at all over the colony for his folly. Sir J. Vogel seems to think frequent actions and threats of actions for libel are now necessary to sustain his character. Of course he always sets his damages at big Vogelian figures, and the total of all his actions begun and threatened would be an immense sum, though he has never got a penny. There is an evening paper called the Press in this city that occasionally contains well written articles condemnatory of the Treasurer, and the action of the latter seemed to show a strong anxiety to silence a voice whose tones were distasteful. At any rate, that is the general interpretation of the action. During the session a Parliamentary Committee reported that Mr. Steward, a member, had as agent sold to Sir J. Vogel, as Treasurer, several small railways, and made over £1000 commission, the Treasurer occupying a rather equivocal position in relation to the business. The Press had a couple of forcible articles, which, whatever they said or did not say, certainly could not do harm to the financier's character, and were not nearly as strong as what was said in the House, the lobbies, and in some other journals. But Sir Julius chose to sue the Press for a few thousands as damages, and after a trial, which did not reveal as much as it might have done, he lost his suit, and was cast in the highest costs. As far as could be judged the whole colony, and certainly the whole Press, approved the verdict; but Sir Julius has given notice to move for a new trial. It was known that in bringing the first suit the Treasurer acted on the Premier's advice, and now it is stated that more than advice is the motor. The aspect in which the Treasurer stands in relation to several matters certainly does not strengthen the Government, and unless the popular impression of that aspect could be changed by a verdict, his retirement might be conducive to the interests of his colleagues. His retirement on any account would strengthen them. He is quite out of touch with the colony, and his whole policy, which begins and ends with borrowing, is now condemned. By the way, he has been trying to settle the Irish question off-hand in a letter to the London Times, in which he urges that the Queen's jubilee should be celebrated by the meeting of an Imperial Federal Parliament. His opponent in the late libel case, Mr. Wakefield, has also written in the Nineteenth Century an able and trenchant reply to Mr. Froude's "Oceana."

The "unemployed" we have still with us, and they assert themselves at Auckland, Dunedin, and Christchurch. In the latter town they are excited because it is believed that the English contractors for the Midland Railway have ideas of their own as to rates of wages. Though we hail the rise in wool, the "depression" does not depart, and the more practical colonists have accepted it as the normal condition. The Premier has tried to exhilarate us by the issue of a little volume to show the colony's progress in 20 years. It is an example of exceedingly sloppy literary work, and is only cold comfort to those who built on sand in the times of fictitious prosperity.

A Parliamentary committee showed that the country had been "had" to the tune of £10,000 in buying a battery site at Auckland, but did not show who was to blame. There has been so much stir about it at Auckland that now a Royal Commission is to try and find the culprits. The party who got the money—one Stark—prudently went to America, so he is safe. Of course, there are sinister reports in circulation, but it seems that the utmost the commission can elicit is whether the Government valuers made a blunder or not.

There is nothing to notice in native matters, nor as to mining, except that the Government steamer has taken a large body of men to develop that very scraggy part of the country, the south-western part of the South Island, which is still largely unexplored. Many efforts to find new deposits of gold in the colony have, so far, not succeeded. Our bench of five judges is seldom above an efficient strength of four, as there is an average of one away ill. Mr. Justice Gillies has now got a turn of long leave, and as the work has got too much in arrear for four, District-Judge Ward has been temporarily raised to the Supreme Court in Mr. Gillies' place. One of the representatives in Parliament for Dunedin, Mr. Bradshaw, has just died, and his seat will probably be taken by Mr. Dick, the late Colonial Secretary. Mr. Bradshaw was the leader in passing Factories Acts in this colony.

The football team from New South Wales, now in this colony, are having generally fine weather and other favouring circumstances, but so far the balance is considerably against them in the record of matches played.

THE ASSEMBLY AND THE DIVORCE BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have no desire to enter upon any criticism of the debate on the Divorce Bill in the Assembly. But I shall be glad to be allowed to call the attention of your readers to one simple fact—the obvious result of the discussion of such a measure at the fag-end of an exhausting session.

There are, I believe, 112 members of the Assembly, besides the Speaker. Of these only 25 voted for the second reading, only 39 were present to vote at all, and only 20 more thought it worth while to pair. The effect was that the majority voting for the second reading is between one-fourth and one-fifth of the whole Assembly; the number present to vote about one-third; and the whole number who in any way expressed their opinion very slightly, about one-half.

It is impossible to accept such a vote as any adequate expression of legislative opinion in favour of a change of the most serious character in the English marriage law, which must involve results confessedly of the highest social and moral importance. If it is to be carried out, surely it ought to have been passed by decisive majorities of the members of the two Legislative Chambers, and at a time in the session which would have enabled the Assembly to bestow upon it full time and unexhausted energy.

I am, &c., ALFRED SYDNEY.

REVIEW.

Faithful Unto Death. By Mrs. HENRY O'NEILL. W. T. Poulton, West Maitland. 1886.

This is a colonial novel, and a promising one it is. In the preface the authoress says:—"The volume is but a simple story of life—life as it passes around us every day. I have not pictured men and women as heroes or heroines of old romance, but as they are—not perfect, but full of faults. Not the creatures of a vivid imagination, but creatures of like passions with ourselves; full of faults and follies, but capable of wide and glorious ambition that may be monitors to duty." There are several principal characters in the book. The heroine is Lily Winters. She appears on the scene as a schoolmistress in a town in New South Wales. She is described as being young, scarcely 19 when she entered upon her duties, and as having violet eyes, and a flower-like face. After she had been in the village about twelve months, she met her fate in the person of Sydney Lockhart, who occupied the highest social position in the neighbourhood. Regardless of her lowly position he wooed her with ardour and apparent sincerity; and her heart having gone out to him from the first, they were speedily betrothed. When exchanging vows he took from his watch-chain a ring that had been his mother's, on which was engraved the motto, "Faithful unto death;" this he placed on her finger, and then asked her to pledge constancy to him—a request that was instantly obeyed—by repeating after him the words, "I will love and trust you always; I will be faithful unto death." In the village Sydney Lockhart had a reputation for fickleness towards women; and the friends of his affianced foreboded trouble to her, because they saw he would probably break with her when the novelty of his passion had worn away. There was, however, a more serious fault than this in the man. Under his roof there resided an attractive girl, Lulu Ferras, who, when quite young, had been adopted by his mother, and to whom (his mother being dead) he acted in the capacity of guardian. Unknown to the world he had done this girl the greatest injury that a man can do to a woman. He excited in her the deepest affection towards himself by simulated love, which, however, she believed to be real. Subsequently he deceived her by a bogus marriage ceremony, which fact she discovered only a few weeks before the time when he became betrothed to the schoolmistress. Her passionate appeals to her betrayer to save her from the dishonour that threatens her, and her despair when the appeals are disregarded, are powerfully described by the authoress. From this to the end of the book the story centres mainly on the lives of these two women. Alick Fenton, a well-to-do young farmer, falls in love with Lily Winters. A most attractive character is Alick Fenton, and it is a good moral tonic to study Mrs. O'Neill's pourtrayal of him. "Little children loved him and came to meet him, and thrust little dimpled hands into his, and prattled to him in childish confidence. Dogs rubbed themselves against his long legs, and wriggled in absurd dog fashion about his big feet." Chivalrous to women and kind to everybody, always eager to oblige, he was fitted to make a model husband; but he gave his love to one who could not return it, and, like many more in similar circumstances, spoiled his life. Some time after the death of Lulu Ferras' baby, both the birth and death of which was kept secret from everybody except a female pensioner of the Lockhart family, there came on a visit to Lockhart Place an English gentleman, Frank Langley. He fell in love with Lulu, who in time reciprocated his affection. On his proposing marriage she told him the story of her life, but concealed the name of her betrayer. The effect of the recital was to deepen his love for her, and after a few weeks they were married. It had been arranged that as soon as the marriage took place they and Sydney Lockhart would proceed to England, the visit of the latter being made in fulfilment of a promise made to his mother before her death. This arrangement was carried out. Before Sydney Lockhart's departure his affection for his betrothed had sustained a chill, and it was predicted that it would die out long before his return. The welcome given to Frank Langley and his bride by the parents of the husband, people of position, owning a large country estate, is well described. During his stay in England Sydney Lockhart became increasingly indifferent towards his betrothed, and finally he became enamoured of a cousin, whom it was his deceased mother's wish he should marry, and made her his wife. Meanwhile his coldness and indifference had brought Lily Winters to the verge of the grave. Seeing in the papers the announcement of his arrival in Sydney, but ignorant that he was married, she implored Alick Fenton to carry a message to him from her. On his return he had to tell her the news that the man she loved had brought a wife back with him. The shock was too much for her enfeebled frame, and she sank quietly on the pillows and died. She kept her vow, and was faithful until death.

Such are the outlines of the story. In working it out Mrs. O'Neill has shown a great deal of skill. The details are well managed, and the interest of the reader is kept up. There is not much brilliant writing in the volume, but there are many passages of great vigour. The work contains proofs that the authoress has closely studied men and women, and has also been a careful observer of natural scenery. In the latter half of the volume Lulu Ferras comes into far greater prominence than the heroine, and this seems to be an artistic defect. It may be, however, that this is the result of a deliberate purpose, and was decided upon so that there might be left upon the reader's mind when he rose from the perusal of the volume a happy rather than a painful impression. There are, as might be expected, crudities in Mrs. O'Neill's book, but, on the whole, it is one of the best works of fiction yet produced in Australia, and, if the authoress will follow the methods which have made the leading novelists of the present day successful, in a few years she should make for herself more than an Australian reputation.

THE GRAFTON-TWEED RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a resident of over 20 years' standing in the Clarence and Richmond districts, kindly permit me to trespass on your columns for the purpose of endorsing the statements contained in two letters signed "C. E. R. Murray," which lately appeared in your paper. As one having a thorough practical knowledge of the country adjacent to the route of the proposed railway from Grafton to the Tweed, and which the proposed route would likely open up, I have not the slightest hesitation in asserting that Mr. Murray, in not writing from personal knowledge, has derived his information from a most reliable source, especially with reference to the country between Grafton and the Flying Horse, and I endorse his advocacy of the Lawrence Terminus, which would avoid the expenditure entailed by the construction of 18 miles of unnecessary line, the difference in distance from Grafton and Lawrence to the Flying Horse. Why not run the line to Lawrence, where the cream of the land is still unalienated? After the deduction for railway purposes had been made, this deviation would materially contribute towards reimbursing the Government for the expenses incurred in constructing the line, whereas by having the terminus at Grafton every foot of land through which the line passed within 10 miles of Grafton would have to be purchased at no doubt monstrous valuations, thus augmenting the expenditure by perhaps one-half. Another marked feature is that Lawrence is at the head of deep navigation—a fact, I should think, patent to the most casual observer, as the channel from here towards Grafton is most circuitous and uncertain at the present time, being insecure for vessels of 500 tons burden. A vast waste of time and money would be entailed in order to render practicable the passage of the larger craft required for our increased commerce. Another advantage of the Lawrence route is that the line would traverse a main watershed from the Flying Horse to any part of Lawrence or its environs, which might be chosen for the terminus without the necessity of erecting a single culvert, which, in my opinion, is a weightier consideration than opening up the 28 miles of pulverised sandstone from the Flying Horse to Grafton. If the Government is resolved to give Grafton a line, I would venture to suggest that it remain in abeyance until the coast line reach there, and then connect the two at the Flying Horse. Mr. Hewitt, in his reply to Mr. Murray, speaks of the stockowners on the Richmond as being likely to utilise the line for the transit of cattle. Now, no person in his senses would truck cattle by a route which entailed an extra half-hour in the trucks and three hours by steamer from Grafton to Lawrence, when by discharging at the Flying Horse, or by running the line direct to Lawrence, this three and a-half hours' additional time would be avoided. I forward these few facts for the enlightenment of the general public and those of our members who may be unaware of the merits and demerits of the respective routes, and to impress upon them collectively that by adopting the Lawrence route an amount of trouble and expenditure will be obviated, viz., by the purchase of land and dredging. The beneficial results attendant on the adoption of the Lawrence route would be participated in by all.

CAPTAIN ARMSTRONG'S CASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It is surely quite unnecessary for me to again refer to the charges brought forward by several of the speakers on Friday afternoon to my detriment. These have been conclusively answered in the House, through the press, and most effectually by the verdict of two select committees of the House, who, after the fullest investigation and the examination of witnesses, reported in every way favourable to me. Is it to be supposed that the gentlemen forming such committees could so far neglect the obvious duties imposed upon them by the House as to ignore the evidence tendered?

Again, is it likely that so judicial and fair-minded a man as Sir Alfred Stephen could have given in so fearless a manner his verdict in my favour without having taken the pains to thoroughly investigate the matter?

I cannot help feeling it as very unfair indeed for members of the Assembly to be again bringing forward matters which have for years been set at rest, and this to the entire satisfaction of those appointed by the House to do so.

I am, &c., RICHD. R. ARMSTRONG.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of Saturday re Captain Armstrong's case, before the House, it is reported that Messrs. Suttor and Abbott refer to the question of the school-house on the island, and as I am the person alluded to in having received the sum of £6 from Captain Armstrong for work done, I think I may claim a right of explanation.

A sum of money, I believe £80, was (at Captain Armstrong's request), granted by the New South Wales Government to build a school at Lord Howe Island. The accounts passed through my hands; I am therefore in a position to explain the circumstances of expenditure. A sum of £62 10s. out of the £80 granted was paid over to Mr. Chadwick, timber merchant, of Sydney, for the framework of this building, leaving a balance of £17 in Captain Armstrong's hands, which was granted to him to pay for freight, landing at the island, and building the school. On arrival of the vessel from Sydney, I assisted with my boat's crew of kanakas in doing this work, and was over two days at it. The inhabitants refused to put up the building, as they stated that if they accepted this present from the New South Wales Government it would only be an encouragement to push further and usurp their rights. The timber, therefore, lay on the ground for over a 12-month. I had also worked several days with the bullocks and kanakas in transferring the timber from the beach to the site selected. At the end of 12 months I left the Island for a short period, and on my return found the school erected. I, however, claimed the sum of £6 for work which I had done, and Captain Armstrong granted it to me, for which a voucher was passed. A Mr. Thompson received about a similar sum, leaving a balance of £4 12s., which Captain Armstrong purposed sending to Sydney by first opportunity, but had no chance of doing so until the arrival of Mr. Bowie Wilson. Mr. Suttor has stated in the House that large sums of money were passed to build such school, and that the expenditure of the money was not accounted for for years. These are the plain facts of the case. The sum in the first place was £80, out of which £62 odd was paid by the Treasurer before the timber was even shipped, leaving the large sum of £17 for freight, landing, and building, and the sum of £4 12s. paid to Mr. B. Wilson, which closed up the account. The charges against Captain Armstrong, who always worked for the interest of the people, are most cruel and unjust.

I am, &c., R. C. ROSE.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—If the Civil servants are too numerous, by all means let their numbers be reduced, but only by such means as will guarantee the expulsion of incapables and the retention of the most able. And if this reduction is to be made, let it be but once and for ever; and for humanity's sake do not let every five years see a repetition of what must unquestionably be a most painful and disagreeable duty. A quinquennial clearance of the service necessarily means that the appointments made during the intervals will be both unsuitable and unnecessary, for if suitable persons are appointed, and only appointed when necessary, what reason can there be for a clearance every five years?

The only fair way to decide the question as to whose services are of most value to the State is to test the ability of the various officers by a competitive examination. I do not mean that one class of subjects will suffice for the examination of the whole service; nor that the ability of men of mature age should be tested by questions which, as boys fresh from school, they would have found no difficulty in answering. It would be better that the examination should take a practical form, and that officers should be examined as to their proficiency in the duties of their particular branch of the service. The services of those who take the highest marks should be retained, and the rest might with some justice be dispensed with. Such a course would satisfy the country that the Civil Service would consist of able and capable men. In rearranging the various departments those who have the highest marks should fill the best positions; and thus the classification of the Civil servant will depend upon ability. New appointments should be made only when absolutely necessary, and after an examination which would prove the ability of the individual appointed. The present classification is a farce, made as it was on the basis of salary received. Thus, to a Civil servant of experience, who from want of political influence had been receiving a small salary, classification meant simply perpetuation of a wrong, while it second to the man who had been foisted over the heads of older and abler men a high-class, and the first claim to the best appointments. Such men, from want of experience and ability, were unable to perform many of their duties, and juniors were appointed to keep them in position. Hence the overcrowding of the service, which only a competitive examination can relieve.

I am, &c., PETER PICKLE.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.—SATURDAY.

(Before his Honor Mr. Justice INNES.)

UTTERING.

Robert Scott Gregory and Charles Aylward were charged with uttering a forged warrant and order for the payment of £70, with intent to defraud, on the 3rd of December, 1885, at Sydney. There was a second count against the prisoners of uttering a forged warrant and order for the payment of £140 on the 16th of April, 1886, at Leichhardt. There was a third count against the prisoners of uttering a forged warrant and order for the payment of £108 on the 4th of May, 1886, at Summer Hill. The prisoners pleaded not guilty. Mr. Gibson, instructed by Mr. J. Wild, appeared for Aylward.

This case was continued from the previous day. Further evidence was called as to character by Mr. Gibson in favour of Aylward.

The prisoner Gregory made a statement to the jury. He said he had admitted his guilt in the first place in order to clear two innocent persons. He anticipated that having done so, his fellow prisoner, who was his only accomplice, would also have pleaded guilty, but finding he did not do so, he (Gregory) withdrew his plea, in order that he might be able to cross-examine the witnesses, and show how the frauds were committed. He had only one accomplice, and he shared the proceeds of the frauds with him. He did not, however, forge Mr. Law's name.

The jury, after an absence of about half an hour, returned a verdict of guilty against both the prisoners on the second and third counts, with a recommendation to mercy in the case of Aylward.

His Honor sentenced Gregory to five years' penal servitude, and Aylward to three years' hard labour in Goulburn gaol, on each count, the sentences to be concurrent.

LARCENY.

Charles Cleyworth, who had pleaded guilty on a former occasion to stealing a watch from the vessel Esk Dale while in port, was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment in Darlinghurst gaol, with separate confinement. The prisoner is only 17 years of age, and appears to have been impelled to the robbery by his necessitous circumstances.

The Court, on rising, adjourned to the 5th of October.

Mr. Maunsell, D.S.M., disposed of the business at the CENTRAL POLICE COURT on Saturday. The charge sheets were very light. A number of persons were fined for drunkenness and other minor offences. William Fletcher, a boy, was fined 10s., in default four hours' imprisonment, for throwing stones to the danger of persons passing in Jones-street. Henry W. Goldfinch, 32, was fined 60s., in default two months' imprisonment, for having used obscene language in King-street. A number of important cases were remanded.

Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., disposed of a number of cases in the Charge Division of the WATER POLICE COURT on Saturday.

INTERCOLONIAL ITEMS.

The City Council has (the Melbourne Argus says) received the reports of Sir Andrew Clarke, Mr. David Mitchell, and Colonel Haywood (surveyor of the city of London), who were requested to advise the council as to the qualifications of Messrs. P. B. Coghlan and G. E. Thomas, the English candidates for the Melbourne city surveyorship. From the 93 applications for the vacancy created by the resignation of Mr. W. Elsdon, five were selected by the Public Works Committee and sent to the council with a recommendation that the surveyor should be chosen from among the five indicated. The council reduced these applications to three, viz., Messrs. A. C. Mountain, P. B. Coghlan, and G. E. Thoms. Mr. Mountain, who is 37 years of age, is at present city surveyor of Sydney. He was attached from 1864 to 1866 to the Roads and Bridges Department of New South Wales. For the next eight years he was in the city surveyor's office, and from 1874 to 1879 was engineer surveyor to the New South Wales Railway Department. He was then appointed city surveyor for Sydney. He is a professor of engineering at the Sydney University, and has testimonials from the Sydney City Council, Engineer-in-Chief of New South Wales Railways, and the Sydney city engineer. Mr. Coghlan is engineer to the London Extension Metropolitan Main Drainage Works, and was formerly borough surveyor at Liverpool. Mr. Thomas is borough surveyor at Wolverhampton. The reports recently received from England are not likely to lead to the appointment of either English candidate, and it is probable that Mr. Mountain will be the successful one. The reports will be laid before the Public Works Committee of the City Council on Tuesday next, and that body will report on them to the council.

POLICE UNJUSTIFIABLE INTERFERENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—According to an appointment made during the day with a gentleman from a neighbouring colony, I called at his present residence, and after tea walked outside the door to have a smoke against the wall and by the door near Tattersall's Hotel. We had scarcely got outside the door of the Sydney Club-house, when a constable came up and unceremoniously interrupted us, and ordered us inside. I replied respectfully, "It is all right, old man." "It is not all right," said he, "nor would it be if I were to take you to the watch-house. What's your name?" said he. I then was inside, and my friend suggested: "Strange liberty of the subject here—cannot smoke at your own door."

I am a resident of twenty years in Sydney, and I can honestly assert that such interference is new to me, and I trust that it could only be perpetrated under peculiar circumstances, and should demand inquiry. I am, &c.,

Hurstville. I. MATTHEW WALSHE.

GAMBLERS AND GAMBLING.

Last evening the Rev. Dr. Jefferis delivered in the Pitt-street Congregational Church a discourse addressed to young men upon the subject of gamblers and gambling. He took his text from the Book of Proverbs, chapter 13, verse 11—"Wealth obtained by vanity shall be diminished, but he that gathereth by labour shall have increase." In the course of the sermon Dr. Jefferis remarked that it had been affirmed to him personally by the Inspector-General of Police that gambling was on the increase in this city. This vice helped to intensify those others which degraded and destroyed men. Gambling, intemperance, and unchastity were the unholy trio that played havoc with good fame, fortune, character, and even life itself. Not more imperative was the call of society upon the legislator than upon the minister of Christ; to the former fell the duty of correcting abuses by the strong arm of power, and to the minister that of reproving in God's name the guilty one. He, as a minister, accepted his responsibility, and would endeavour to discharge it, and to dissuade young men from that which would ruin them as it had ruined thousands before them. He expressed his admiration of the way in which the press had dealt with this evil. Press and pulpit were too often at variance with one another, but they were at one in condemning the spirit and practice of gambling, and asserting its ruinous effect upon private and public character. There were two things necessary to gaming or gambling; there must be hazard, and there must be an absence of an equivalent for what was staked; there must be gain to one player, and loss to the other. But it might be asked, "Is not this largely so in ordinary business, especially so in mining and other hazardous speculations?" No doubt there was a great deal of business that was virtually gambling; but it would be foolish to affirm that mercantile and mining operations, which in some of their aspects must in their very nature be speculative, had in them the nature of gambling, except by abuse. A man could not send wool to England or buy manufactured goods there for sale here, the capitalist could not combine with others to raise minerals, without speculation; but if a merchant risked the money of others without their consent, or the capitalist used the feverish excitement connected with mining operations for "rigging" the share market, whatever they might call themselves, he called them gamblers in the worst sense. It was said by others, "Physician, heal thyself," for it was found that ministers and churches in the endeavour to pay off their church debts or raise money for church operations countenanced lotteries. He could not deny it. The Church of Christ, the sworn conservator of morals had been defiled, and was now defiled by the spirit and practise of gambling. Let judgment begin at the House of God, and let them at least purge themselves from complicity in this evil. He then gave a sketch of the history of gambling and its immorality, and quoted the words of an American writer with regard to the wide diffusion of the gambling spirit in England in connection with national sports. Referring to the recent boat races on the Thames, he said that the delirious excitement of the crowds that lined the banks of the river was due but in the slightest degree to personal interest in Beach, or Gaudaur, or Ross, or the countries they represented, that vast multitude had risked its money on the event, and all the men composing it cared for was to win the stake. As in England, so in Australia we had the gatherings of excited men in the streets upon the days of the races, clustering like swarming bees around the newspaper offices, men fierce with excitement and hungering with greed to get the earliest news by telegraph about Beach and his victory, for the sake of the money, perhaps, they had staked upon him. Touching upon the law in its relation to gambling, he remarked that if a man went to the racecourse with thimble and pea, or a Chinaman opened a fan-tan shop, the police were ready to apprehend, and the magistrate to condemn with the utmost rigour, but the book-maker, who lived by plunder, whose calling was a scandal and a disgrace to society, and who ought to be committed to gaol for being without lawful occupation, was allowed to ply his evil trade, and bet in the open street, or upon the race-course, with his gold-edged, morocco-bound instrument of gaming, and there was no policeman to apprehend, or magistrate to convict. What should they say also of those moral pests of society the authors of sweeps and "consultations;" sweeps, indeed, they might well be called by the name they used, for they were men who, in defiance of all legal enactment, made ample gain out of those who were void of understanding, and even out of the men of business often who employed them. Such men lived by pillage, and they were more dangerous to society than the thief who picked pockets, or the burglar who broke into houses. But the indictment must be framed against private, as well as public, gambling. It was opposed to the laws of God, as well as those of men, and brought about loss of means, loss of peace, and loss of character to the individual. One of the chief evils which resulted from gambling was the spirit of recklessness. The virtue of thrift, which every young man should place high in his list of virtues, was set aside. If a man became known to be a gambler, no one had confidence in his honesty, bankers employed detectives to watch their young men, and warehouse owners applied to private enquiry officers to get information about their employees. He concluded by making an earnest appeal to all young men present to register a silent vow in their hearts never to disgrace themselves by gambling.

Next Sunday Dr. Jefferis will deliver the first of a series of lectures to young men on "The socialism of Christianity." These discourses have been very carefully and thoughtfully prepared by Dr. Jefferis, and their delivery is looked forward to with much interest. On Sunday evening Dr. Jefferis called attention to a misprint which had been made in the verse by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, quoted at the close of the advertisement published in the newspapers calling attention to these lectures. In the final line of the following the word "crisis" was misprinted "curse," thus making the whole unintelligible:—

"And rich men make the poor, who curse the rich,
Who agonise together, rich and poor,
Under and over, in the social spasm
And crisis of the ages."

"WHAT THE FLOWERS TEACH US."

On Sunday afternoon the Rev. A. Miller, M.A., preached a sermon in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, upon the subject "What the flowers teach us." The service was the usual quarterly service held in connection with the Sabbath school, and the sermon was intended principally for children. Mr. Miller took for his text the words, "The flowers appear on the earth" (Solomon, 2 ch., 12 v.) In his preliminary remarks he said he thought the subject he had chosen was very appropriate for this season of the year. They had been hearing recently much about flowers, and might very properly try and learn a few things which the flowers taught them. The flowers taught them first of all that God was good. One of the ways by which they might learn about God—get to learn something of his character—was by studying his works. They might learn a good deal about him by looking at what he had done—from studying the flowers. Flowers had something to teach them, and the first thing they taught was that God was good. They could live on the earth without flowers; they were not necessary to support life. But God had given them far more than necessaries of life. He had given them much joy and gladness in the flowers which came in their season, and were tokens of his kindness. The next thing that flowers taught them was that God was wise. When they examined the flowers they found that they were very wonderful in their construction and very beautiful—far more beautiful than anything man could do. The smallest flower, if examined with a powerful microscope, would seem to be more beautiful by being magnified. Man sometimes constructed things which seemed to be beautiful at first, but under the microscope the beauty would disappear, and it would be found that the thing was not so elegantly formed as any of the things which God had given them. The wisdom and power of God was displayed quite as much in what was infinitely little as in what was great. Flowers told them more and more of the wisdom of God, for, as they had been singing, "The God who made the daisies, and every lovely thing," must be wise and great, and a wonderful worker. Then again, flowers taught them the lesson of modesty, by setting them an example. Flowers were very unassuming. They were wondrously beautiful, yet they did not push themselves forward, or bring themselves under notice. They had to be sought for in some obscure nook or shady dell. Therefore, the cultivation of flowers might teach them a lesson of modesty and retirement. Flowers were cultivated and grew beautifully in out-of-way places. Children could do what was good, and their services were much more acceptable when rendered in modesty, meekness, and humility. Modesty made a good action and good conduct all the more acceptable. The flowers also taught them the lesson of usefulness. They would be poorer and worse off if they did not have the flowers. They were pleased with their beauty and their fragrance as they grew in their gardens and elsewhere. Every flower had a mission, and flowers were often distributed in the hospitals, where they did good by cheering the sick and the lonely and desolate in the time of their trouble. So children should try and do all the good they could. Each child had a duty to perform and should try to perform it as well as possible. There were plenty of opportunities for doing good, and they should make the most of them. By the flowers they were also taught a lesson of trust. It was God who "made the daisies and every lovely thing." He had formed them and covered them with a garment of beauty. He was also able to do everything for them, and they should trust in Him to supply all their wants. The flowers reminded them also that they must one day die. Flowers were very beautiful whilst they lasted, but they must all wither and fade; they only lasted the season out, and many of them were not allowed to do that, for they were plucked or cut off. And it was the same with human beings. God sometimes caused them to be plucked and taken away. The time would come when like the leaf they would all fade away. He would, therefore, urge upon them the necessity of making the most of the time they had by serving God and being faithful.

The discourse was listened to very attentively throughout. The service was interspersed with a number of appropriate hymns, in addition to which the sacred song "Scatter seeds of kindness" was rendered by a lady in the choir.

VIRTUE AND MORALITY AND THE CHRISTIAN HOME.

The Rev. T. B. Tress preached at St. Peter's Church, Woolloomooloo, last night, on the subject of the Christian home as the great safeguard of virtue and morality. He took for his text Isaiah 38th chap. 9th verse—"Set thine house in order, for thou shalt die and not live." The question of domestic economy, he said, was one of universal interest, and of unspeakable importance. It meant simply the law of the house. How much depended upon what that law was. If it was a bad one its pernicious effects would carry poison right through generations. If a good one its beneficent effects would be equally lasting. One of the most successful of Christian ministers had said that he could trace a person's ancestry through 300 years. Many a promising man had been wrecked through domestic mismanagement. Many a noble woman had been borne to an early grave through cares which she had been unable to carry. As he looked round upon the immorality, pride, and sin abounding in every direction, he was persuaded that the one great secret of the existence of vice was the irregular home, or, he might say, the absence of home in a great many cases. When Napoleon was lamenting the condition of France on one occasion, the question was asked—"What does France most need?" The reply Napoleon gave was—"In my opinion France needs mothers—true women that can care for the upbringing of the young." If he (Mr. Tress) were asked to-night what we in Australia most needed, what we in this city of Sydney, which had become notorious for its wickedness and lawlessness, most needed, he would say that what was most wanted in the community was a well-regulated home. We talked about our larrikins, and mourned over the condition of our young people, but it was not so much in the young people as in the old people that the real cause of the evil lay—not so much in the poor young fellows as in those who had been responsible for their training. He himself felt most strongly that the time had come when every man and woman in the city must rise to his or her duty in regard to public morals; and anything that could throw light upon the unhappy condition of things around us should be hailed with thankfulness. The one great fault was the want of well-regulated homes. If anything he said to-night would enable sons of his hearers to realise the condition of their homes his remarks would not be in vain. No institution bore more distinct indication of divine origin than family life. Going back to the day that God formed the world for human occupation, created man after His own image, and woman for an help meet, they saw that the foundation was there laid of family relationship and the blessed institution of the home. In the preservation of that institution could also be seen the divine hand. There was in society an unfailing tendency to throw itself out in families. It was as natural for it to throw itself out in that way as for man to eat and drink. There had been national revolutions, mighty empires, nations, and dynasties had been overthrown, changes of almost every description had taken place during the various epochs of the world's history, but family life had survived, had stood against the test of time. The growth of civilisation had changed the form of family life; but in substance it remained the same. When they thought of the uses of the home they had another evidence of its wonderful importance. The home was a place of rest, and because there was rest in the home it was one sign that it was of God. Home was the place where the hearts of the community lived in tenderest affection. Where love was God was. Then, again, home was a place of protection—protection from the natural temptations that assailed young people. In this respect there was to be seen in the home the stamp of the hand of God. Well might they say "there is no place like home." Well might our hearts with joy and gladness sing the old song, "Home, Sweet Home." The injunction of the text was "Set thine house in order"—that was, set up a law for the government of the house. There were some households regulated only by personal affection. That was a mighty power, and there could be no happiness in the home where personal affection was not. It was much to be regretted that in the community there were households that were not united by these ties — in which brothers and sisters sought friendships outside the home. But if personal affection was the only law there, it was a law that was insufficient. Other households were conducted for mere pleasure and gratification—the comfort of the house, the well-spread table. Failure must certainly follow these. Having pointed out the hollowness of various other lines upon which home life was constructed, the preacher said that the highest law that could govern home life was the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of the Lord Jesus Christ, without which there could be no lasting or solid peace. There must also be the law of the family altar—the family engaged in unity of prayer to Almighty God. To the household that was built up merely on personal affection there would come a day—and it could not be long distant to any—when that tie would be smashed. The same with those who lived for pleasure and gratification. The voice that ministered in song to the gratification of many friends would soon cease to be heard; the foot that oft may have tripped in the giddy dance would soon be motionless. Let not what he had said be regarded as visionary or ideal. Let them set their houses in order, and remember that broken homes would be reconstructed in the land of endless day.

FEAST ON THE NAUTICAL TRAINING SHIP VERNON.

The committee of ladies and gentlemen who have been so assiduous in their labours in connection with the organisation of a series of feasts for the inmates of the Government charitable institutions enlarged the original sphere of their operations by giving on Saturday a feast to the boys on the nautical training ship Vernon. Elaborate as have been some of the preparations connected with other feasts this season, and successful as they had been, they were in both respects excelled by what took place on the Vernon. The ship was decorated from stem to stern with bunting, a portion of the deck had been enclosed by an awning and a large variety of flags, and the gangway had been rendered extremely attractive by the mass of foliage and flowers in which it was enveloped. On deck a proscenium had been improvised, and there were stands of arms, groupings of boat hooks and oars, and designs of radiating sword bayonets to lend gaiety to the fete. In addition to these pretty surroundings, the visitors, of whom there were about 100, were confronted by large letters in burnished 'brass, which read,—"Welcome, and thanks for your kindness." The rigging was also manned in honour of the occasion—that is, using the term manned in such a way as to include the lilliputian crew. The visitors were welcomed by Capt. Neitenstein, who has no less than 2 6 boys under his charge. The provision made for the amusement of the children included a Punch and Judy show, the exhibition of which afforded an extreme amount of pleasure to the Vernon boys as well as to not a few of the visitors. Following Punch and Judy came the feast, which was laid out on the lower deck, and included poultry, sucking pigs, vegetables, fruit, aerated waters, and lollies. In another part of the vessel refreshments had been provided for the visitors, who included the Minister for Public Instruction (Hon. Dr. Renwick), Mr. Garland, M.L.A., Messrs. Quong Tart, Robert Guy, J.P., A. L. Nelson, J.P., A. C. Hewlett, and F. C. Brewer. After the refreshments had been partaken of, some toasts were honoured, including those of "The Ministry," "Captain Neitenstein and the officers of the Vernon," and "The Feasts Committee." The lastnamed toast was proposed by the Hon. Dr. Renwick. In submitting it he spoke in terms of high congratulation of the origination of the series of feasts to the inmates of Government charitable institutions. He regarded that movement as one of the most important which had taken place in late years, as it enabled numbers of citizens to discharge their duties of citizenship by co-operating with and endeavouring to assist those who were charged with carrying out the practical details connected with the management of those institutions. Until recently but very few people felt it to be within the scope of their duty as citizens to lend their support by their presence to those who were entrusted with the responsible duty of managing Government asylums and other institutions. Other institutions—such as the Benevolent Asylum, the hospitals, and establishments supported in a like manner—were continually visited by friends; but, with regard to Government institutions, the idea prevailed that the taxpayer did all that was required of him by giving his quota towards the cost of maintenance. He held that a greater mistake could not be made, and that many advantages would spring from private inspection. He earnestly desired the success of the operations of the feasts committee, which brought into the various institutions to which they directed attention a slight streak of light from the outdoor world, and with it something of the blessings of our everyday life. The record of that day would, he was sure, be marked by those boys in white chalk as a memorable one in their history.

After the feast an entertainment was held on deck. The principal vocalist was Mrs. Innes. That lady sang in a most artistic manner "Ye Banks and Braes," and also contributed "Laddie," which she gave in an excellent manner. Miss Gribben, who is the possessor of a very musical voice, and sings effectively, took part in two duets—in one, "Larboard Watch," with Mr. Guy, and in the other, "Hunting Tower," with Mr. Quong Tart. The comic element was sustained by Mr. Webber, Mr. W. J. Ferguson, and Mr. Leopold Jordan, and the efforts of each of these performers were highly appreciated. Amongst others whose contributions were received with plaudits were Mrs. Hewlett, Mrs. Quong Tart, and Miss Josie Jacombs. The second part of the programme was devoted to the Chicago Minstrels, who presented an excellent entertainment. In connection with the orchestral part of the minstrelsy, Mr. N. La Feuillade and Mr. Roberts rendered valued assistance, and the former gentleman also performed with his well-known skill a selection on the violin. The work of accompanist for many of the singers was sustained by Mrs. Guy. The pleasure derivable from the day's proceedings was also enhanced by a selection from "Masaniello," cleverly played by the Vernon band, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Fearn.

Simultaneously with the departure of the feasts' committee, and the ladies and gentlemen accompanying them, the yards were manned and a salute of seven guns was fired. The visitors were conveyed to and from the Vernon by steamers belonging to Mr. Jeanneret, and the generosity of that gentleman in granting the use of his vessels for that purpose was recognised on the return trip by loud and hearty cheering.

AMUSEMENTS.

ROYAL STANDARD THEATRE.

At the Royal Standard Theatre on Saturday, the Dampier Company played "Saint or Sinner," a dramatisation of some of the principal incidents described in Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables." Whenever the drama has been played in Sydney it has proved highly attractive, and in the present instance it drew to the Standard a very large audience. Mr. Dampier, who appears as Valjean, the principal character, has represented that individual's various traits in such strong colours that he has won from Hugo himself a letter in which the great writer thoroughly eulogises that gentleman's portrayals. Independent of this, however, Mr. Dampier's impersonation has earned the admiration of everyone who has witnessed it and is capable of forming an independent opinion upon it. Valjean is a being of such varying impulses that circumstances one day make him a decided criminal, and the next cause him to relinquish every prospect of social and domestic happiness in the interests of purity and justice. Mr. Dampier has studied the part with care, and, though a difficult one, he plays it with a vigour and an intensity of feeling that elicit the most frequent outbursts of applause. A great deal of care has been taken to place the piece on the stage in a finished manner, and new scenery has been painted for it. The scene in which Valjean escapes from prison, and is fired on by his guards, is exceedingly effective, and the limelight is introduced in it with excellent results. The criminal by fortuitous circumstances after his escape ascends to the position of a magistrate, and the situation becomes a trying one, for during a brief reign of authority he is brought face to face with his former prison comrades, and the circumstances are such that he has to submit to severe trials to conceal his identity. The change in Mr. Dampier's acting at this stage proved his great versatility, and showed that he can portray nobility of purpose as easily as a fixed criminal determination. He also displayed great artistic taste in the scene in which Valjean, tempted by a demon to inflict injustice on an innocent man, but guided by nobler instincts, discards his robe of office, and re-consigns himself to life in the galleys. The drama, like the novel, abounds in interesting situations, many of which are also highly dramatic, and these are all represented in striking colours, so that altogether the performance may be regarded as a highly successful one. The principal actor was very well supported by the general company. Mr. Holloway was allotted the part of Myriel, the good Bishop of Dijon, whose good thoughts, words, and actions, filled every day of his life. Mr. Stoneham was Javert, the inspector of police, and though he played with care he made the character too dramatic instead of imparting to it an appropriate intensity of coolness and deliberation. Mr. Loston was well suited with the part of Gillenormand, and dressed it excellently. Thenardier and his wife were represented by Mr. J. Cæsar and Miss Merton respectively. The remaining principal parts were allotted as follows:—Gavroche, Mr. Stark; Marius, Mr. Boothman; Champmathieu, Mr. W. E. Baker; Fantine, Miss Katherine Russell; Cosette, Miss Lilly Dampier; Sister Simplice, Miss Rochfort; and Madame Magloire, Miss Maud Walton. A word of praise is also due to Mr. Fred. Gunther, the business manager, for providing for the proper accommodation and comfort of the audience. On Friday Mr. Dampier will appear as Hamlet, and on the following night the company will produce "Faust."

THE POLYTECHNIC.

An entertainment of a character almost new to Sydney was opened at Saturday evening in George-street, in a building situate a few doors northward of the Royal Arcade. It is known as the Royal Polytechnic, and has pretensions identical with those of the institution which for a number of years bore this appellation in Regent-street, London—an institution that was periodically visited by the majority of the residents of the great city, and one which is known of by hearsay throughout all civilised countries. The object of the management of the London institution was to impart in a comprehensive and attractive manner a knowledge of the sciences and manufactures. The instruction was so admirably given by the lecturers and demonstrators engaged that it met with the attention of visitors of all ages and classes, and thus the institution was a means of doing much good service to the community. However, the London Polytechnic has passed away.

The Polytechnic, which was opened at No. 490, George-street on Saturday night, will doubtless shortly become a popular place of amusement, "Science Popularly Explained" being in fact the motto adhered to by the proprietor. Each day and evening the institution will be open to the public. Besides a large amount of apparatus intended to be used in the demonstration of scientific problems, there are on view model steam engines and ships in motion, electro-magnetic engines in use, and, for the amusement of visitors, numerous graphoscopes, polariscopes, and other similar objects of interest. After making a tour round the rockwork at the entrance and passing the handsome screens which have been fitted up, the visitor enters the main hall. He sees suspended upon the walls a series of engravings, 42 in number, illustrating the story of the Norman Conquest, the artist being Mr. William Maclise, R.A. Then, in the centre of the room, will be observed a raised tank nearly 20 feet in length, in which are models of a full-rigged American ship and several small craft. In this tank also a model of a torpedo boat will be worked by electricity from the commencement of this week. The model is 30 inches in length. It is fitted, in the rudder, with a patent screw, the object of this departure in shipbuilding being to secure by this means the execution of the work usually performed by twin screws. To the left is a charming representation of one of the Jenolan Caves. An object of especial interest is the pianista, by the use of which instrument a pianoforte may be played, the only motive power required being that necessary to turn a handle. This instrument has been imported from Paris. In height it stands a few inches above the keyboard of the piano, the width of the instrument being of the average length of a keyboard. When using the pianista, a strip of music similar in appearance to the sheets used with the well-known orguinettes is placed upon the top of the instrument. Upon the handle being set in motion the sheet of music is pressed beneath rollers, and, in short, the keys of the piano are struck by corresponding "fingers," and the notes of the particular air desired are heard. The pedals of the piano may be acted upon by levers fitted in the base of the pianista, and by manipulating a small crank, variations of the expression may be produced. On either side of the hall is a long table edged with crimson drapery and covered with black velvet, upon which is displayed a large quantity of instructive and amusing objects. Upon the one side are miniature dredges and cranes, which are set in motion by small horizontal and vertical engines, the motive power being compressed air. On the opposite side are a score of models worked by electricity. These exhibits comprise a model merry-go-round, a windmill, a praxinoscope, and other small articles. At various points of vantage are negro dancing figures, a growling bear, ship in motion within a glass case, and a model of a bear pit, from the depths of which one of the quadrupeds ascends by a pole, and descends again thereafter. Then there are to be seen polariscopes, electroscopes, airpumps, and machinery for illustrating the principles of pneumatics, all of which are accurately explained by the proprietor of the exhibition, Mr. Alfred Cane. Chemical experiments also are performed. One table near the entrance door is set apart for the use of children. At this spot the little ones are invited to amuse themselves with puzzles in wood and puzzles in metal, puzzles requiring considerable thought, and puzzles of comparative simplicity. All of these are meant for minute examination, and at no point in the exhibition is there to be found any announcement such as "Do not touch," or even the more extended and more polite recommendation to be met with in some of our parks, "You are requested to assist in protecting what is intended for your amusement and recreation." Here the method of amusement and recreation takes a tangible form, and is made doubly entertaining by the aid of what is familiarly and aptly termed ocular demonstration. The different phases of engraving upon glass are illustrated by a competent mechanic, and it is intended to introduce shortly a fret-work machine and potter's wheel, both of which will be kept in motion. In the rear of the large hall a refreshment room has been suitably fitted and furnished. Adjoining this room is the lecture hall, but this structure has not yet been completed. Arrangements have, however, already been made for the delivery of a course of lectures, of which the first will be given this afternoon and evening by Mr. Crane. The subject to be dealt with is "The greatest busy-body in the world," this term being synonymous, from the lecturer's point of view, with one of the factors of which air is composed. To-night and thenceforth the illuminations will be effected by the electric light; and, in the course of a few days, everything will be in readiness for the illustration of lectures by dissolving views. Both on account of the merits of the exhibition and of the small charge made for admission, the Royal Polytechnic should be largely patronised. When once the entrance fee has been paid, there are no further calls made upon the purse, everything being open to free inspection and criticism. Adults and children, may, with advantage, pass many pleasant hours here, for the beneficial result of a visit will not only be temporary but permanent. The information so concisely imparted, and the experiments so lucidly explained will cause reflection, and this degree of interest, it is reasonable to anticipate, will give place to a desire and ultimate resolution on the part of some of the visitors to study one or more of the branches of science herein brought under his or her notice.

THE THEATRE ROYAL.

There was a crowded and fashionable audience at the Theatre Royal on Saturday evening. The dress circle wore a particularly brilliant appearance from the large number of ladies in their varied toilettes. The opera throughout went with great smoothness, and the usual hearty reception from the public. The madrigal was beautifully sung. The management are determined not to weary the audience, for, in spite of crowded houses every night, this is the last week of "The Mikado." "Iolanthe," for six nights only, is to commence on Saturday. Miss Alice Barnett has not yet played the Fairy Queen in Sydney, her performance will be a specialty in the revival.

GAIETY THEATRE.

A thoroughly delighted audience witnessed the performance of the new comedy "Two too many" at this theatre on Saturday night, and it is due to the adapter, Mr. C. M. Rae, and the producer, Mr. Harry St. Maur, to say, at the outset, that it is one of the most amusing farces ever played upon the colonial stage. It is hardly necessary to point out that the original "Trois femmes pour un Mari" is risky, for when M. Grenet Dancourt's merry absurdity was produced at the Cluny Theatre, January 11, 1884, even Parisians were astonished at its extreme naughtiness—a naughtiness remarkable even in the City of the Seine. But a French writer rarely offends by grossness. If he has to go over delicate ground he glides gracefully and swiftly over the surface, leaving the sub-soil undisturbed. It is those who plagiarise plays from the Palais Royal, or steal acts, or scenes, or incidents, who are disinclined or unable to follow his example. They plough up the surface, plunge through the sub-soil, and offend all by a combination that sharpens, not softens, the unsavouriness of a subject. Mr. C. M. Rae is an honourable exception to the general rule of adapters. He has avoided pitfalls, skated over thin ice, engineered equivoque, and has, indeed, done his spiriting gently. "Two too many" still retains the sauciness of the original, but the adapter has displayed great ingenuity in fitting to English surroundings scenes which seemed difficult of treatment, yet indispensible to the action, and while supplying much dialogue which is not in the original, has toned down the suggestion of the story. Even now the dialogue contains a good many lines that might reasonably be objected to by not prudish people; and still more lines that Saturday's audience construed into a meaning which the adapter had not intended to give them. "To the pure," however, "all things are pure;" and the so-called comedy has been sufficiently cleansed for all practical purposes. The fault of the story is that it is too rapid. Dilemma follows dilemma in such quick succession that the spectator feels some difficulty—not exactly with regard to following the thread of the narrative, devious and mazy and complicated as that becomes—but as to how he ought to distribute his laughter. The incidents in themselves are excruciatingly funny. A confirmed young bachelor, Ralph Newcombe, is informed by his rich uncle, Silas Troutenwetter, a German-American, that the latter has chosen a wife for him, and in order to escape what he considers a terrible fate, he pretends to be already married, making use for the occasion of the daughter of his landlady, Caroline Puffin. On the other hand, his friend, Jack Howard, who is about to be married to a charming young lady, Miss Violet Greenwood, has a rich uncle, who determines he shall never marry at all, and as this mysogynist unexpectedly turns up in London on the eve of Jack's wedding day, he persuades his friend Ralph to pose for the time as a happy man. This is spouse the second for Newcombe. But Jack is an artist, and has engaged as a model, a lively damsel, Polly Pidgeon, between whom and himself there have been tender passages. His future parents-in-law discover Polly in his studio, and he passes her off to them as Ralph's wife. This is how the bachelors' harem is made complete, and by a series of ruses the cot web of deception is kept intact until the close of the third act. To tell the story adequately would require an inordinate amount of space; but this sketch will show that "Two too many" has complication enough was 20 ordinary farces. Pieces of this calibre entirely depend for success upon adequate interpretation, and in most cases the acting was of the best description. Mr. Harry St. Maur as Uncle Troutenwetter was excellent. In a character part very different from those usually sustained by this mercurial comedian, he achieved a distinct success. His make up was artistic and true to nature, while his dialect was well sustained. Mr. Alfred Maltby's Mr. Greenwood is another finished portrait to add to the gallery of senile old men which he has already presented to the Sydney public. The laughter was never so loud as when Mr. Maltby was on the stage, and the recreation by himself and Mr. St. Maur of their original criterion characters was the success of the evening. Mr. Darcy Stanfield and Mr. Fenton were the two boys who confuse their uncles so wilfully as to their matrimonial projects. Concerning Mr. Fenton, who was out of his element as the light feather-brained Ralph Newcombe, a discreet silence is the kindest criticism. Mr. Darcy Stanfield, as the bewildered bridegroom, played with a most comical sincerity. This actor has the rare talent of being funny without being vulgar, and without undue exaggeration. His weary face after he has accidentally taken a sleeping draught intended for his uncle, and has to struggle against drowsiness at his own wedding, is an entirely humourous picture. Mr. E. C. Calvert has never appeared to such advantage as in the character of Peter Mullins, the misogynist uncle, and Miss Annie Taylor was most quaint as the weeping Mrs. Greenwood. Miss Fattie Brown was inimitably clever as the German niece with an unpronounceable name and a caricature accent, and the ingenue of Miss Poweys was pretty. Miss Brookes, Miss Mortyne, and Miss Melville adequately represented the model, the real bride, and the lodging-house keeper. The piece went very well from start to finish, the applause was most hearty, and there is no doubt that "Two too many" will secure full houses for the remainder of the season. This is the last appearance of the Royal Comedy Company for the present, but Mr. St. Maur intends returning shortly to Sydney, when he will produce Sir Charles Young's "Jim, the Penman," Pinero's "The Schoolmistress," and Bronson Howard's "Brighton."

SATURDAY EVENING PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The attendance at the Exhibition Building on Saturday evening was so numerous that the promoters may naturally augur well for the success of their enterprise. The appearance of the building was greatly in favour of the concert, as many of the decorations designed for the ball given by the bachelors of the Union Club were still in their places, and the orchestra was shut in by drapery over which garlands of greenery were festooned. But though very pleasing to the eye the draperies were not beneficial to the ear, and the absence of the sound-board and screens, which the Sydney Liedertafel have proved so successful in improving the acoustic properties of the building, placed the performers at a disadvantage. This was particularly noticeable in the numbers contributed by Miss Fabeian, whose voice which, in other places has been equal in power to its agreeable quality, was far from sufficient to fill the building; and Mr. Halliwell, whose powerful organ has many times roused his hearers to the greatest enthusiasm, was comparatively speaking, ineffective, thought it must be remembered that the accomplished basso has barely recovered from a severe illness, and his reception was very hearty. The acute voices had decidedly the advantage. Mr. Vernon Reid, in "Queen of the earth," Pinsuti (taken rather too slowly), and in Balfe's beautiful serenade, "Good night, beloved," gave great pleasure to his hearers, and was in each case recalled. Miss Frances Saville, who was in excellent voice, contributed first the "Shadow Song," from Meyerbeer's Dinorah, as no other vocalist now in Sydney could render it; it is long, difficult, and requires perfect control of various styles, and more than all, certain singers have made such a furore with the air that to attempt it is to force comparison. That Miss Francis Saville is equal to some who have sung "Ombra leggiera" in Sydney, she would be the first to deny; but her interpretation was one which did her great credit, and well merited the recall, while in Millard's beautiful song "Waiting," her success was so complete that the audience had much to justify their demand for a repetition. Miss Saville repeated a portion of the last verse. Mr. Hutchinson's flute obligato bore a honourable share in the performance. M. de Willimoff, who played the obligato to Rohande's song in the first part, in the second contributed Ernst's transcription of airs from "Otello," which includes some of Rossini's most beautiful melodies, and is at the same time one of the best specimens of Ernst's compositions, both as to difficulty and brilliantly effective writing for the instrument. M. de Willimoff, in the recent season, with Farley's Opera Company, did excellent work, and his rendering of the fantasia showed that he is in good practice, an indispensable essential to players of the most exacting, yet most grateful and sympathetic instrument. M. Kowalski was the remaining soloist, and played in a grandly-effective manner his transcription of "Faust," in which the beauties of this chef d'œuvre of Gounod were revealed in charming style. A more perfect bit of "singing on the piano" is rarely heard than that in which the lovely air "Dammi Ancor" was given, or more characteristic rendering than that of the Kermesse; the rival choruses and the familiar scenes in this favourite opera were reproduced with graphic power, embraced all the varieties of technique in a masterly manner. No one could resist such a spontaneous demand for a repetition; but the encore piece given was too long, and, compared with the "Faust," very commonplace. The Promenade Band, which comprises 42 instrumentalists, consists of 8 clarionets, 1 oboe, 2 flutes, 1 piccolo, 6 cornets, 6 horns, 3 baritones, 2 euphoniums, 4 trombones, 5 bass, 2 side drums, 1 bass drum, and cymbals, contributed four numbers, of which the first was decidedly the best—the overture to the "Bohemian Girl." The arrangement is a good one, giving considerable prominence to the solo cornet, which was admirably played by Mr. H. M'Mahon. The second, a valse, "Chant d'Hymenée," by Czibulka, which though famous by name, was not impressive in a musical sense. "Excelsior," the third selection, was particularly interesting as the music of a ballet which has made a great furore in every European capital of note; a furore which can have little to do with the music, apart from the 700 performers who tread the rhythmic measure. The selection given is very much like the "Orpheus" of Offenbach in style, bright and lively throughout with occasional melodies which fall pleasantly on the ear, and all with well marked rhythm. The "Locomotive" Galop Billiaert was the concluding piece. Mr. Rivers-Allpress accompanied throughout and showed much judgment and ability in the work. Mr. H. M'Mahon conducted the last galop, and evidently does much of the training with the band; and M. Kowalski conducted the remainder with the skill and aplomb for which he is well known. The inauguration was most encouraging, and when a little more rehearsal has brought the various forces into working order, much better results may be expected. The step is one in a direction which all interested in the progress of music amongst us must approve.

HISCOCKS' FEDERAL MINSTRELS.

This evening Mr. Hiscocks takes his annual complimentary benefit. The programme was changed on Saturday, when Mr. Horace Bent, by request, introduced his lecture on the "Comic History of England," to the great amusement of a very large audience. The Raynor Brothers were as usual much appreciated, and the various members of the company well fulfilled their parts. The present is the last week of the season, which has been so well supported by the public; and as all engaged at the Academy of Music contribute their share to the extra bill for the manager's benefit, there is every reason to suppose that the same harmony which has been before the curtain pervades the association in their relations to each other. A bumper house will, doubtless, testify the satisfaction of the public with Mr. Hiscock's efforts for their amusement.

LYNCH FAMILY BELLRINGERS.

This company commence their suburban tour at the School of Arts, Burwood, to-night, when they give the first of a series of popular concerts.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB SPRING MEETING.

Patron: His Excellency the Right Honorable Baron Carrington, G.C.M.G.; judge, Mr. A. Town; starter, Mr. A. A. Devlin; handicapper, Mr. J. A. Scarr; timekeeper, Mr. T. M. Alcock; clerk of the course, Mr. James Ashworth. Mr. T. S. Clibborn, secretary.

FOURTH (STEEPLECHASE) DAY, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 25.

Brilliant weather favoured the concluding day of the twenty-second spring meeting of the A.J.C. The attendance on Saturday was good, the racing first-class, and everything conspired to make the gathering as pleasant and agreeable as it possibly could be. Although from a sporting point of view Steeplechase Day is not the most important of the meeting, it is always popular with the public; and it was, therefore, not surprising that the attendance should be the largest. His Excellency the Governor, Lady Carrington, and suite were on the ground early, and before the Second Hurdle Race was run; the seats reserved for the vice-regal party in front of the grand stand were fully occupied. By the time the band of the Permanent Artillery on the lawn had played the National Anthem to welcome the representative of sovereignty, Sydney had sent its thousands to Randwick. The vehicles, however, still came rolling up in hundreds, and the trams discharged their throngs until the crowd reached its maximum about 3 o'clock, when there must have been at least 16,000 persons present. There were legislators there looking as fresh and sprightly as if there had been no late sitting of Parliament on Friday night. For once the politician smiled benignantly on his brother-politician, for whom in another place he affects a supreme contempt. The lawyer, forgetful of his quillets, mixed freely with crowds on the lawn. Doctors, drapers, city men, brokers, and tradesmen of every degree rubbed shoulders in the saddling paddock with portly bonifaces with rubicund cheeks and still more rubicund noses. Squatters from Riverina and New England, from the Barcoo and the Warrego; sportive Queenslanders with sunburnt faces, and speculative Victorians with polished hats and fancy boots proclaimed the federating agency of the A. J. C. Amongst the motley, surging, swelling crowd the English, Scotch, Irish accent was to be heard by turns, mingled with the mellifluous tones of the children of the chosen race, who figured prominently in the ring. The grand stand was packed with a splendid display of Australian womanhood, happy in their rich elegance of apparel, criticising and being criticised. The captivating girls of the period, chattering matrons, old maids who for the time had ceased to remember their grudge against the two sexes, were all bright and festive. The breaking of a glorious morning impelled them to eschew their winter garments, and to enter with enthusiasm into a display of summer fashions. About midday a good many fair faces looked flushed and hot, and fans were vigorously at work. In the afternoon the air was balmy, and there was then sufficient breeze to prevent the heat becoming oppressive. To paint the varying hues of the rainbow would be an easier task than for a masculine pen to describe the dresses, which, in gorgeous variety, filled the grand stand with billows of colour. Flowing robes of silk and satin, and dresses of cream, pale pink, lavender, green, and brown, in many shades, were charmingly set off with dainty head-gear and rich embroideries. Bad taste was seldom to be seen, and the number of outré gowns was certainly not large. Luncheon was far from the least attractive item of the day's programme. Many of the fair occupants of the stands brought their midday meal with them, and whole families held picnics there—a very wise course to adopt considering the exorbitant prices charged for refreshments on the ground. It afforded them the additional satisfaction of effectually baulking those who were watching for an opportunity to jump deserted seats. In the saddling paddock the scene was of a different character, but even there small gatherings of parasols testified the presence of ladies. The owners of the racehorses and the jockeys were there giving and receiving advice. Jockeys too, in cerise, cardinal, dark blue, white, violet, and black, were grasping the bridles at the mouths of some of the favourites, or mounting gracefully into the saddles. The fine-conditioned horses, surrounded in some instances by crowds of backers, gave evidence of careful training. Of all the horses there, Trident looked the perfection of equine existence; and Ellis, attired in the popular blue body, white sleeves, and blue and white cap, might well be proud of the magnificent animal under his charge. In the paddock a good many were to be met with who, in the language of Tom D'Urfey, "make racing a trade, and dream of their projects to come," and others who, according to old Burton, have "galloped quite out of their fortunes," and are bent upon retrieving their losses by calculating and obtaining odds. The bookmakers were present in strong force, but the result of the racing was against them, for it was a bad day for the layers of odds. It was decidedly business that was thought of here amongst the backers and layers—not fashion and pleasure. There were, however, very few "piles" made. There was no totalisator here at work as on the Eagle Farm course in Brisbane, to bring pounds of commission to swell the funds of the A. J. C. That "instrument which cannot lie" has been objected to as an "instrument of gaming," but the experience of Queensland has proved that it is far less objectionable than the bookmakers' betting books. Of course it does not supplant the betting ring in the Northern colony, but its influence is decidedly against malpractices on the turf, and the possibility of mischief on the part of men, who if any such exist in these colonies

"Many a crimp match have made
By bribing another man's groom."

It is an open record of the bets that are fairly made, and can be read by all. The lawn in front of the stands presented a lively appearance. The band of the Permanent Artillery played there choice selections from the works of such composers as Sullivan, Godfrey, Rossini, Auber, and Lasserve, the music being wafted to all parts of the course, to the various coigns of vantage, where the pushing, jostling, striving, laughing, talking multitude took up their places. The racing itself afforded a fine day's sport, and was evidently appreciated. Like the Suburban Handicap, the Steeplechase was attended with disaster. Student at the back of the course, at the last fence but two, had a terrible fall. Battye, the jockey, was thrown, but he escaped with a severe shaking and a few slight scratches. He lay for a considerable time under his horse, and it would be well if in future men were stationed at each fence to assist fallen riders. Various rumours were circulated as to the nature of Student's injuries, some asserting that his neck, others that his back, and others that his legs were fractured. It turned out that the near fore-arm was broken, and that the days of the gallant little hurdle-racer were numbered. Several of the starters in the Steeplechase baulked at the fences. Union Jack fell at the first, and Cymbal came down at the second with terrible force, and Talbot, the jockey, being unable to save himself, was slightly injured, through the animal rolling over him. No other accidents occurred to mar the proceedings. The course looked dry and parched, and was certainly not in good condition, but the arrangements were on the whole satisfactory. It would be well if at the entrance to the official stand the passages were left clear, for it is decidedly objectionable to see them blocked with persons sitting on the steps, smoking in the intervals between the races. The judge and starter discharged their duties well; and the veteran jockey, Mr. James Ashworth, the clerk of the course, looked the picture of neatness, reminding the habitués of the course of the old days when the yellow and black was in the ascendant. The people in the enclosures were orderly and well-behaved, and the police who were in attendance found little difficulty in maintaining order. The usual contingent of light-fingered gentry was present, but their movements were carefully watched, and thus sinister designs on purses on one or two occasions thwarted.

Veronique and Caloola were about equal favourites for the Second Hurdle Race, but the former quite failed to act up to promise, and the latter, tiring under his great impost, rapped one of the hurdles so badly as to destroy whatever chance he might have had. The withdrawal of all her stable mates led to the belief that Neophyte was a good thing for the Members' Handicap, but although she held a prominent place all the way, she failed to stay it out, and could only get third to Bravo and My Lord. The latter had a narrow escape just after passing the sheds, where the course is in a very lumpy state, as he tripped and nearly came to grief. Although Lord William ran a really good colt, he was no use to Trident at the end of the Randwick Plate, and the Derby winner won easily in the fastest time that has yet been accomplished at Randwick. Crabstick, who had not a 1000 to 1 chance, was lame when he left the paddock, and it was a pitiful sight to see the unfortunate animal toiling hopelessly in the rear. When speculation opened, Ringmaster was in such favour for the Waverley Handicap that he hardened up to 7 to 4, but before the word was given he receded to 4 to 1, and Lord of the Lake was elected first favourite. While Ringmaster was being supported by the public a lot of money was quietly got on to Coriolanus, whose immediate friends landed a good stake by his victory. Several horses showed improved form in this race, for the field was well together at the finish, and the time has never been beaten in Australia. The Steeplechase was a very pretty one, but the fact that only five out of the 13 starters got home safely shows that there must be something radically wrong. On both occasions that they were tackled, the three fences in front of the stand were jumped beautifully, and cast behind with hardly a rap; but blunders and falls took place at nearly every one of the others. Student fell at the fence near the half-mile post, and broke his near fore-arm. The bone was protruding nearly two inches through the skin, and the unfortunate creature was left in that condition for nearly an hour before he was destroyed. Even then he was not shot as he should have been, but the knife was brought brutally into use. Surely it would have been possible to have gifted the gallant grey with the "friendly bullet" within a few minutes of his fall. Battye was thrown very awkwardly and was considerably crushed and bruised, but fortunately no bones were broken. The rail that brought the horse down is not more than 3 feet 9 or 10 inches in height, but the take-off is very sandy, and it would be well if in future the take-off and landing at the various fences were to be watered. The Agent won the Free Handicap like a racehorse; and thus ended a most successful meeting. The following is an account of each race:—

THE SECOND HURDLE RACE, a handicap sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each for starters, with 150 sovs. added; second horse 25 sovs. from the prize; two miles.

Betting: 5 to 2 each v. Veronique, 7 to 2 v. Society, 5 to 1 v. Javelin, 7 to 1 v. Laurel, 8 to 1 v. Equity, 10 to 1 v. any other.

Laurel led from a good start, and showed the way over the first fence, attended by Polly, Lindesfarn, and Equity, with the others well packed, and Javelin last. Laurel led Polly a length past the stand, and the pair were followed by Deception, Caloola, Equity, and Veronique, Javelin still last, and the pace very slow. They ran in something like the same order to the back of the course, where Lindesfarn was in trouble, and Javelin began to go up rapidly on the outside, and when passing the half-mile post he was within a length of Laurel, while Equity was third, and Caloola, in difficulties, next. Javelin had an advantage of half-a-length of Laurel at the last jump, and a pretty battle resulted in his winning by half-a-length. Society, who came too late, was third, a length away, and two length from her came Caloola, four lengths in front of Deception and Equity, and then, after a gap, succeeded Veronique, Polly, and Lindesfarn. Time, 3 minutes 52¼ seconds.

THE MEMBERS' HANDICAP, a handicap sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each, 1 forfeit, with 150 sovs. added. For three years old. Second horse 25 sovs. from the prize. One mile and a furlong.

Mr. W. E. Royd's b c Bravo, by Grand Flaneur—The Orphan, 3 years, 8st. 5lb. (Gallagher) ... 1
Hon. W. A. Long's ch c My Lord, by Epigram—Olive, 3 years, 8st. 7lb. (Colley) ... 2
Hon. J. White's br f Neophyte, by Chester—The Alpaca, 3 years, 7st. 2lb. (Ellis) ... 3
Mr. W. Cooper's bl g Fernandez, 3 years, 7st. 2lb. (Curran) ... 0
Mr. John Driscoll's ch c Glencore, 3 years, 7st. (Driscoll ... 0
Mr. J. D. Cameron's b c The Wreck, 3 years, 7st. (Huxley) ... 0
Mr. J. Ellis's bl or g c Caramana (late Barbarian), 3 years, 6st 12lb. (John Gough) ... 0
Mr. D. Cameron ns. br f Tuscarora, 3 years, 6st. 8lb. (O'Keefe) 0
Mr. T. Ivory's b g Home Rule, 3 years, 6st. 4lb. (Simmons)... 0

Betting: 2 to 1 v. Neophyte, 3 to 1 v. Bravo, 5 to 1 v. Fernandez, 6 to 1 v. My Lord, 10 to 1 v. any other.

A good start gave Neophyte a slight advantage, and, making the most of it, she led to the seven furlongs post, where Caramana joined her, and he forced the pace along the back of the course to the sheds, where My Lord attempted to go up, but tripped, and losing his place, Bravo and Fernandez went on third and fourth. Neophyte just led into the straight, with Fernandey and Bravo hard upon her, and The Wreck and My Lord making their efforts at the distance a great race ensued until a dozen lengths from home, when Bravo drew away, and won cleverly by nearly two lengths. A splendid race ensued for the places, My Lord beating Neophyte by a head, while the filly was scarcely a neck in front of The Wreck, and then came Fernandez, Home Rule, Coromana, and Glencore. Time, 1 minute 56¼ seconds.

THE RANDWICK PLATE of 500 sovs., for three years old and upwards; second horse 100 and third 50 sovs. from the prize. Weight for age. Three miles.

Hon. Jas. White's ch c Trident, by Robinson Crusoe—Cocoanut, 3yrs., 6st. 13lb. (Ellis) ... 1
Mr. Geo. Osborne's ch c Lord William, by Grand Flaneur—Nina, 7st. (Nerriker) ... 2
Mr. J. Monaghan ns. b f Gentility, by Grand Flaneur—Belle of Cobham, 3yrs., 6st. 7lb. (John Gough) ... 3
Mr. Jas. Fagan's b g Crabstick, aged, 9st. 6lbs. (J. Gordon) ...dis.

Betting: 8 to 1 on Trident.

As soon as the flag fell, Gentility took up the running, and making the pace very strong, led Crabstick, who was being ridden to keep his place, a length past the stand, Trident three lengths away, and about the same distance in front of Lord William. Crabstick fell back last at Cutts', and Gentility led Trident four lengths along the back of the course, Lord William waiting two lengths away. Still going strongly Gentility showed Trident and Lord William on terms the way past the stand the second time by a length and a half, but after getting over the tan crossing the filly collapsed, and Lord William led the Derby winner half a length past the mile post. The two colts raced along the back of the course and up the hill together at a great pace, but when half a mile from home Trident went to the front, and, galloping well within himself, won easily at the end by half a dozen lengths. Gentility was a bad third, and Crabstick was beaten by more than half a mile. Time, 5 minutes 31½ seconds.

The following is a list of placed horses for the Randwick Plate three miles:—

Betting: 3 to 1 v. Lord of the Lake; 4 to 1 v. Ringmaster; 5 to 1 each v. Coriolanus and Zeno; 8 to 12 to 1 v. any other.

A good start was effected, The Orphan and Ringmaster being the smartest on their legs; and the former sailing away at a great pace led into the straight and past the stand, followed by Lord of the Lake, Ringmaster and Petronel, the others well bunched, with Lancer last. After passing the seven furlongs post, Ringmaster and Lord of the Lake raced up to The Orphan, and the trio went up the hill together, closely attend by Rifleman. When half-a-mile from home the four leaders were clustered, and a length from them succeeded Coriolanus and Zeno. The two last-named made up a deal of ground when rounding the bend, and Coriolanus appeared to be the first to land in the straight, with Zeno and The Orphan almost on terms. A great race took place all the way up the straight, and when opposite the lawn Coriolanus swerved right across the course, but Fiddes kept him going, and landed him a winner by half a length from Dagobert, who finished wonderfully well, and then almost too close to be separated came The Orphan, Zeno, who had been interfered with by the swerving of Coriolanus, Lancer, and Rifleman, who were succeeded by Ringmaster, Lord of the Lake, Petronel, and Minerva. Time, 3 minutes 4 seconds.

THE STEEPLECHASE, a handicap sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each, 1 ft., with 250 sovs. added. Second horse 50 sovs. from the prize. Over such course and jumps as the committee shall direct. About 3 miles.

Mr. G. Champley ns b g Wild Rake (late Monte Carlo), aged, 9st. (G. Champley) ... 0

Betting: 3 to 1 v. Student; 4 to 1 v. Union Jack; 7 to 1 each v. The Hatter and Kangaroo; 8 to 1 v. Havelock; 10 to 15 to 1 v. any other.

Wild Rake acted as pilot over the first fence, followed by Havelock, while Javelin fell, and Union Jack and Redlight refused. Cymbal came to grief at the second flight, which was negotiated by Wild Rake, Havelock, Kangaroo, Butcher Boy, Julia Ann, The Hatter, and Blackall in order. Wild Rake then assumed a commanding lead, and showed the way over the treble in front of the stand attended by Havelock, The Hatter, Kangaroo, Butcher Boy, Julia Ann, Student, Despatch, and Blackall. Wild Rake lost his place at Cutts', and Havelock appeared at the front but was soon headed by The Hatter, who led over the fence near the seven furlongs post by a couple of lengths. Kangaroo, Butcher Boy, Julia Ann, Wild Rake, Student, Despatch, and Blackall following on very fair terms, and all jumping beautifully. They ran in something like the same order to the fence near the three furlongs post where Butcher Boy fell, and nearly brought Student with him. Facing the treble for the second time The Hatter had a strong lead of Kangaroo, who was two lengths in advance of Havelock, after whom came Julia Ann, Student, Despatch, Blackall, with Wild Rake a long way out of it, but jumping well Havelock ran round the fence at Cutts', and The Hatter, Kangaroo, Student, Blackall, Julia Ann, Despatch, and Wild Rake jumped it in order. Despatch fell at the back of the course, and Kangaroo going to The Hatter, the pair raced up the hill at a great pace, followed by Student, who was a long way clear from the others. The two leaders jumped the fence near the half-mile post together, but Student taking off too late came down with a terrible crash, and rolling on to Battye, remained there for a considerable time. Kangaroo then shook off The Hatter and won by about 10 lengths. Blackall was third, three or four lengths away, then, a very long way out of it, came Julia Ann and Wild Rake. Time, 6 minutes 54½ seconds.

THE FREE HANDICAP, of 150 sovs, with a sweepstake of 1 sov. each, to go to the second horse. 1¼ mile.

Betting: 6 to 4 v. The Agent, 4 to 1 v. Kathleen, 7 to 1 v. St. John, 8 to 1 v. Kitawa, 10 to 1 v. Astrea.

Speculation and Paladin got the best of a good start, but were soon passed by Sir Garnet, who led round Cutts' corner, followed by Folly, Kitawa, Speculation, and The Agent. Sir Garnet carried on the running until half a mile from home when he retired in favour of The Agent, Kitawa, and Speculation. Astrea and Kathleen came out at the distance, and a pretty race ensued, ending in favour of the favourite by a length, while Astrea beat Kathleen by a length and a half for second place, and then on pretty fair terms succeeded Kitawa, Folly, Paladin, Sir John, Peter, and Speculation, with Willeroo a long last. Time, 2 minutes 10 seconds.

THE TURF.

The A. J. C. Spring meeting of 1886 will long be remembered for the coup of that clever Melbourne division who so successfully pulled the strings in our great Spring Handicaps. Ringmaster, Bohemian, and Coriolanus form a trio upon which no tender reminiscences will be framed. The last scene of the drama was enacted in the Waverley Handicap on Saturday. Ringmaster was a terribly hot favourite. Commencing at 5 to 1, he rapidly rose until he reached 7 to 4, the public almost shouldering one another to get through the crowd to obtain the best price about that mysterious racehorse. A few minutes before the race started, however, the horse declined in favour as rapidly as he had risen, and there was an eager rush among the knowing ones to get on to Coriolanus. The result was that Ringmaster, who looked the very pink of condition, was nowhere, and Coriolanus won rather easily. "The best laid schemes of mice and men gang oft aglee," is an old saying, the truth of which at the late A. J. C. meeting has received forcible confirmation. The Jewel in the Metropolitan nearly upset all calculations. The Melbourne Leader thus refers to the Metropolitan:—"There can be little doubt that the eleventh hour withdrawal of Ringmaster paved the way for Bohemian, and an opinion prevails—whether the same has foundation in fact, I cannot say—that both factions were equally interested in the winner's running. The old and familiar cry, "Forestalled," was put forward as the reason of Ringmaster's retirement, but one thing is tolerably certain, namely, that the Bohemian commission had been successfully floated before Ringmaster gracefully retired from the contest. That Ringmaster would have been equal to fulfilling the mission so effectually accomplished by Bohemian, I feel firmly convinced, and hopefully look forward to his future behaviour to justify the opinion. Now, that the race is over and done with, it cannot be denied that the Bohemian coup was admirably planned and artistically executed. No one ever supposed from the horse's previous running that he was equal to winning a two-mile race of such importance as the Metropolitan."

For many years the ring has not received such a reverse as at the late meeting, and when the settling takes place to-day there will be some mournful visages among them. The worse remains behind, for in nearly all the principal books the name of Trident appears with great frequency both for the V.R.C. Derby and Melbourne Cup. The double event business, which usually is such a great source of profit, now presents almost certain loss, for the public will have nothing but Trident in future doubles or right out betting. The bookmakers cannot keep on laying against Mr. White's great colt, and as only a few other horses will be backed, their field of operations is considerably curtailed. The public have not even as much money as certain stables and their following. Most of the money has gone to that "clever" Melbourne division and their friends. The books have been hit hard by the public on the minor events of the meeting, viz., in the Trial Stakes, Hurdle Race, Spring Stakes, Spring Maiden Stakes, Squatters' Handicap, and in the two-year-old events.

Owing to most of the ring being at the glove fight on Saturday night, there was very little betting at the various sporting resorts. Though there is no alteration in the price of Little John for the Melbourne Cup, he is not quite so firm, a gallop he did at Caulfield on Saturday morning not pleasing the touts. 100 to 6 is the best offer on the field, bar 1: Trident is anxiously inquired for, and 7 to 1 would be taken about him for a large amount. Silvermine has been somewhat reinstated in the betting for the Caulfield Cup. He did a good gallop on Saturday morning. 100 to 5 is wanted about him.

If Havelock had not been accidentally run off the jump by Kangaroo, it is the opinion of many good judges that he would have won the steeplechase on Saturday. He was going and jumping grandly at the time. He came from Ballarat—the art gallery of steeplechasers.

On Saturday, October 9, the Sydney Turf Club will hold its Spring Meeting at Randwick, when the following excellent programme will be submitted for public approval:—Amateur Hurdle Race of 100 sovs., to be ridden by amateurs approved of by the committee; Spring Handicap, of 150 sovs., six furlongs; Sapling Stakes of 150 sovs., for two year olds, winner to be sold for £200, half-a-mile; The Sovereign Plate, a handicap of 100 sovs., lowest weight 7st., seven furlongs; October Handicap, a handicap sweepstake of 3 sovs. each for starters, with 250 sovs. added, second horse to receive the sweepstakes, distance one mile two furlongs; The Corinthian Plate, a handicap of 100 sovs., lowest weight 9st. 7lb., the horses to be ridden by amateurs, one mile and a quarter. Entrance for each race is only one sovereign. Nominations must be made with Mr. Clibborn before 4 p.m. to-morrow.

The settling over the A. J. C. Meeting will take place to-day.

Mr. T. S. Clibborn will hold his annual sale of racehorses to-day, at Fennelly's Bazaar, Pitt-street, commencing at 2 o'clock. Among the horses to be submitted are Myles-na-Coppaleen, Normanby, Polestar, Rapid, Rebus, Mary Anderson, Highland Mary, The Orphan, Belvoirina, Lady Marion, Queen of the South, Strephon, Czarovitch, Redlight, and Laurel. On account of Mr. William Kite: Br f, 3 years, by Gemma di Vergy from Lilian (dam of First Demon); b f, 3 years, by Gemma di Vergy from Lady Elizabeth; b f, 3 years, by Gemma di Vergy from Gill Gill; all three fillies being untried. To prevent over-crowding in the yard, a charge of 1s. will be made for admission. The proceeds will be given to the Children's Hospital.

At noon to-day Mr. W. Garling will sell, at his bazaar, the properties in connection with the Cumberland Hunt Club meeting, next Saturday; and the right to entrance gates, booths, &c., in connection with the meeting of the Canterbury Park Race Club, on October 4.

Belle Hamlin, a full sister to Dr. Slate's imported trotter Huon, recently won a trotting race at Cleveland in 2 minutes 18½ seconds.

At Cleveland on July 29th Harry Wilkes trotted the fastest three heats on record in a race, viz., 2 minutes 16 seconds, 2 minutes 14½ seconds, and 1 minute 15¼ seconds.

NEWCASTLE CRICKET AND FOOTBALL CLUBS SPORTS.

NEWCASTLE, SUNDAY.

The Newcastle Cricket and Football Clubs held their annual meeting of athletic sports yesterday on the Newcastle Cricket Ground. This meeting is looked forward to with great interest by all amateurs in this district. There is scarcely a family of any distinction but sent its representative, and on this occasion from all the mining townships the principal pedestrians and athletes were sent forth to do honour to their localities, and the keenest interest is evinced in the result of each event. Under these circumstances, and with such splendid weather as was afforded yesterday, it was surprising that the ground was not better filled with spectators at the commencement of the programme, but during the afternoon the attendance increased, till there were at least 3000 persons present. The City Band performed some very pleasing selections during the afternoon. Mr. C. H. Hannell, Mr. S. Keightly, and W. J. Corden ably acted as referees and judges. Mr. J. R. Hall as starter, and Mr. W. Sidney as time keeper, maintained their usual reputation, and Mr. M. H. Cristoe performed the onerous duties of secretary with his usual ability, and with general satisfaction to the public. The following is a brief résumé of the events:—

Drop Kick.—J. Greaves, 54 yards; 16 competitors.

Throwing the Cricket Ball.—J. Davidson, 113 yards; 15 competitors.

Members' Handicap, 125 yards.—63 started, in seven divisions. The winners were W. J. Rooney, A. Allen, W. J. Ellis, J. and G. Sharman, H. Gow, H. Nash. Final heat: H. Nash, 1; W. J. Ellis, 2.

Boys' Race, 100 yards.—17 starters. First division: A. G. Miller, 1; H. Brookes, 2. The final heat was won by Brookes.

Boys' Race, 75 yards.—14 started. First division: W. Nyman, 1; T. C. Miller, 2 Final heat: Miller.

Bicycle Race, 1 mile.—Five started. Won by W. Cuthbertson, who led from the start, with Turnbull and Hinder close up.

Bicycle Race, 2 miles.—10 started. A well-contested race till the last four laps, when the race lay between five competitors. It finally ended with R. Turnbull (scratch) first, closely followed by J. Need (scratch) and W. Cuthbertson (250 yards) in the order named.

440 Yards Flat Race.—14 started out of 60 entries. Some good racing took place, but the event clearly lay between H. Nash and F. Wilkins, each with 45 yards start. After a well-contested race Nash won by about 10 yards, with Wilkins next, the rest being nowhere.

Walking Race, one mile.—Ten started. Great interest was manifested in this race, which was finally won by J. H. Wilson, 90 yards, 1; A. Maloney, 40 yards, 2; A. Cork, 65 yards, 3.

Running High Jump.—J. B. Laing, 4 feet 10½ inches. Twelve competitors.

200 yards, in five divisions.—Won by R. Went, H. Gow, E. Pike, P. J. Finlayson, S. W. Ansey. Final heat: R. Went, 10 yards, 1; E. Pike, 8 yards, 2.

Hurdle Race, 440 yards.—Seven started. Good race. W. R. Solly, scratch, took up the running for a good distance, but broke down at the last hurdle. It was finally won by E. Hollinshead, 40 yards; Swansey, 40 yards, 2.

Bicycle Race, three miles.—Six contested. At 150 yards Turnbull gave up, and at nine laps the race lay between S. H. Fairhall and J. Need. It was won by Fairhall, 150 yards. Time, 2 minutes 50 seconds.

880 Yards Flat Race.—Eight started. Finally won by E. W. Bull, 70 yards; A. Davis, 40 yards, 2; E. Brierley, 35 yards, 3.

This concluded an excellent day's sport.

SURRY UNITED C. C. v. ASHFIELD WARATAH C. C.—These clubs met on the latter's wicket, at Ashfield, on Saturday last. The home team winning the toss, went in to bat, and put together 110 runs before being disposed of. Freshwater, with 30, was top scorer, but his batting, though good, was not equal to that of J. C. Roberts and W. Collis, who made 23 and 19 respectively by really first-class play. The only other double figure scorer was Long, who made 14 in a style which, though vigorous, was scarcely scientific. R. Brewster, who secured five wickets for 22 runs, was the most successful bowler for the Surrys. The Surrys, when they went in to bat, with an hour and ten minutes time, tried to force the runs, expecting to get them without difficulty. In this, however, they reckoned without their host, for thanks to the splendid bowling of Collis (5 wickets for 17 runs) backed by fine fielding on the part of the whole of the team, and the sound judgment of their captain, the home team secured the downfall of eight of the Surry's wickets for 66 runs at the call of time. Cottam made 32 by grand cricket, but got out very unfortunately after playing a ball by sending it back on his wicket instead of returning it to the bowler. Andrews, with 11, not out, played attractive cricket. The superb wicketkeeping of Brown for the home team was much admired. Scores:—

COATES v. SHERWOOD.—This match was played at Parramatta on Saturday afternoon, and resulted in favour of Coates team. De Saxe, 41 not out, played well for the winners, and only gave one chance. Thorpe and Byrnes bowled well for the victors, the former securing most wickets; and the brothers Stieme were very effective with the sphere for Sherwood, but their efforts were very badly backed up by the field. Appended are the scores:—

The trustees of the Association Cricket Ground have decided to offer 11 trophies for presentation to the players of the best senior team during the coming season. Last season they gave a cup for competition; but instead of it giving an impetus to club cricket it had no beneficial effect. The individual trophy business will appeal to the feelings of every player, and no doubt will be popularly received; but it will create selfishness among the batsmen, and tend to make a player strive more for individual than the general success of his side. The giving of individual trophies will operate against organisation and the spirit of harmonious co-operation. Moreover, no club will be represented by the same eleven during the season. It may be that at the end of the season there may not be five men of the team which represented a club in the opening match. It is also intended by the trustees that the clubs which enter the competition shall remain in possession of the ground until the match is finished.

The game between the Redfern Cambridge and the Hero of Waterloo ended, after an exciting game, in a victory for the former by two runs. Score: Redfern Cambridge, 41; Hero of Waterloo, 39.

The game between the Rugby and Ivanhoe clubs was resumed on Saturday. The former team continued their first innings, and when the last wicket fell had compiled a total of 126, thus giving them a majority of 25 runs over their opponents. For Rugby R. M'Coy played a capital innings for 27, while J. Hillier played well for 24. The Ivanhoe then went in for their second innings, and had scored 107 runs for the loss of five wickets when the stumps were drawn for the day. Of that number Myers made 32; P. Charlton, not out, 21; G. Bolton, 18; and G. Kelly, not out, 16. Wightman bowled in good style for the Rugby.

The Eastern Suburbs met the Emeriti at Woollahra on Saturday, when the game ended in a draw. The Eastern Suburbs team, who went in first, scored 146 runs, of which number J. J. Ferris played a fine innings for 87 runs. For the same side R. Daly made 22, and Windeyer 14. When the stumps were drawn for the day the Emeriti had scored 58 for the loss of one wicket, the run-getters being Barbour not out 34, and Aitken 18.

The Wentworth and Pyrmont Ivanhoe (13) met at Wentworth Park on Saturday. Burcher and Sparkes, the Wentworth bowlers, played sad havoc with the opposing team, who were all disposed of for the meagre total of 27. At the call of time the Wentworths had scored 87 for the loss of nine wickets; Dickings making 24, Dummett 20, Green 22, and Sparkes (not out) 12.

The Mansfield met the North Shore Cliftons on Saturday last. The Cliftons scored 123, of which number Rice scored 54, Whiting 25, and Carter 23. When the stumps were drawn the Cliftons had scored 27 runs for the loss of four wickets.

The Undaunted and Newtown Waratah met on Saturday in Moore Park for the Bowden Metropolitan Cup, in the presence of a large number of spectators, who appeared to take great interest in the game. The Newtown Waratah, who went in first, made a poor stand against the bowling of Sorrell and Barton, and were disposed of for the small total of 23 runs, of which number Hopkinson made 10. Sorrell captured six wickets for two runs. The Undaunted responded with a total of 87 for their first innings, the chief contributors being Law with 30, Moore with 19, Engel with 14, and Houghton with 10. The Waratah, in their second essay, obtained 44, and thus were defeated in an innings with 20 runs to spare. Hopkinson was again the only double figure scorer on the defeated side. In the two innings Sorrell took 14 wickets at the cost of 15 runs.

The Revellers and Redmyre Clubs met at Redmyre on Saturday, the result being an easy victory for the former. The scores were:—Revellers, 103, and 4 for 35; Redmyre, 63. The principal contributors for the Revellers were Thomas, 33; Dunn, 17; Taylor, 14; and Bannister, 13, not out. For the Redmyre's, Newman made 17, and Clamp, 13. The bowling of Dunn for the victors was very good.

FOOTBALL.

GRANVILLE FOOTBALL CLUB.—A meeting of the members of the Granville Football Club took place at the Royal Hotel on Friday evening, Mr. R. Telfer, president, in the chair. The report of the last season's doings showed that the first team had played eleven matches, of which they won nine and two were drawn. They scored in all 26 goals to their opponents' six, and again entitled themselves to hold the Association Cup, having thus won it two years in succession. The second eleven played six matches, of which they won three, lost two, and one was drawn. The treasurer's statement showed a balance of £2 1s. 1d. The report was adopted, and after a considerable amount of discussion concerning the cup, which, it appears, the association are not in a position to purchase, it was resolved to endeavour to raise the money for the cup locally. It was arranged to have a social to wind up the season, and a vote of thanks to the office-bearers for the past season brought the proceedings to a close.

AUCKLAND, SUNDAY.

In the football match yesterday, Sydney v. Auckland, the latter team won by 11 points to nil. Sydney claimed a goal, which was not allowed.

PEDESTRIANISM.

A handicap footrace, distance 150 yards, was run off at Rookwood on Saturday afternoon. There was a good attendance, and the event, for which 25 started, created considerable interest. The events resulted as follows:—

First Round—First heat: A. Swindfield, 18 yards, 1; T. Swindfield, 19 yards, 2. Second heat: F. Davies, 8 yards, 1; C. Day, 13 yards, 2. Third heat: Chapel, 10 yards, 1; Greenwood, 21 yards, 2. Fourth heat: Barclay, 11 yards, 1; A. Fathers, 12 yards, 2. Fifth heat: Honeyset, 6 yards, 1; Moore, 10 yards, 2. Sixth heat: W. Allsopp, 2 yards, 1; Napp, 21 yards, 2.

Second Round—First heat: Allsopp, 1; Chapel, 2; Honeyset, 3; T. Swindfield, 4.

Final: T. Swindfield, 1; Chapel, 2; Honeyset, 3; Allsopp, 4.

ATHLETICS.

The fact that Foley's extensive gymnasium was crowded on Saturday night with an audience who paid a guinea each to witness a glove encounter between Professor Jackson and J. T. Lees will show how great was the desire on the part of the public to witness the encounter. The assemblage may be said to have been of a mixed kind, nearly all the leading sporting men in Sydney being present, including one sporting M.L.C. There were also present a prominent mining M.L.A., an ex-chairman of committees, and two or three ex-members of Parliament. Those who paid their guinea certainly did not receive the worth of their money, for a tamer and more unskilful glove-encounter was never witnessed. As a preliminary to the great event a spirited and clever display of boxing was given by Molloy and O'Brien. That was all the boxing that the onlookers were regaled with during the evening. The contest between Jackson and Lees was for £200 aside and a grand silver belt presented by Mr. Foley, the retired champion. A great deal of time was lost in arranging the preliminaries, the choice of referee being the difficulty. Both sides agreed to the selection of Mr. Geo. Seale, and that gentleman, after some persuasion, accepted the position, Mr. J. Thompson being chosen timekeeper. As regards height and reach, Jackson had a great advantage over Lees, and was nearly 2st. heavier. The match was under Queensberry rules, the rounds being of three minutes duration with a minute's interval, a man when knocked down to be allowed 10 seconds to get up unaided, and failing to do so to lose the contest; no wrestling nor hugging allowed. In the first round Lees very quickly lunged at Jackson's ribs—the supposed vulnerable part of the latter—Jackson, however, was on the alert, and he heavily countered Lees flush in the face, and repeated the operation before the expiry of the round, which, according to the rules, occupied three minutes. In the second and succeeding rounds, Lees dodged, and would not face his opponent, who fairly chased him round the ring. This introduction of pedestrianism into the proceedings did not suit the taste of the audience, who hooted Lees. It was the evident intention of the latter to wear out Jackson, but it was apparent to all that he was only exhausting himself. Round after round was repeated with hardly a blow being struck. In two consecutive rounds they did not make an effort to hit each other. The antics of the two combatants forcibly brought to mind the mimic glove encounter on the stage of the Academy of Music between Messrs. Bent and Moynham. During the one hour and fifty-seven minutes which the contest lasted the two men were several times quite exhausted, and Lees was knocked off his legs five or six times. Jackson was the better boxer all through, and it was only through his opponent's tactics that the affair was so prolonged and uninteresting. Whenever the men came within exchanging distance of each other, Jackson showed unmistakable superiority as a boxer. At the end of the 30th round Lees was beaten, but he stood up for two more rounds, and was eventually knocked out. Neither combatant received any punishment worth mentioning. Jackson's victory was well received, Mr. L. Foley promptly suppressing any remarks which were likely to create a disturbance. There was a posse of police in the hall, but their services were not called into requisition.

HANDBALL.

Several matches were played at the Handball Court, Rising Sun Hotel, on Saturday afternoon, the most noticeable being one between Keenan (left hand) and Collins v. Stykes and Heagney, which was won by the latter. Farrell and M'Grath played M'Laughlin and Collins, which also resulted in a win for the latter.

AQUATICS.

A race for maiden fours, open to the members of the Mercantile Rowing Club, was rowed on Saturday afternoon for club prizes. Two crews started, viz., P. Freeman, W. Berry, E. Wickham, E. M. Haymett (stroke); and F. Toombs, M. Robinson, R. Williams, G. Hanchard (stroke). Considering that both crews had been in active training for some lengthy time, a good race was anticipated; but unfortunately after the crews had been sent away, and had gone a very short distance, No. 2 in Hanchard's crew broke the swivel pin off, and in consequence his crew had to retire. However, and with true sportsmanlike spirit, the winners offered to row again for the trophies on Tuesday afternoon next.

The club's annual regatta will be held on the Parramatta River on the 16th proximo.

FISHING.

The Nimrod Fishing Club will hold their annual picnic at the Sir Joseph Banks' Pavilion, Botany, on next Wednesday. Great enthusiasm is being manifested by the "hunters of the deep" in their annual celebration, which is under the patronage of his Worship the Mayor.

N. S. W. GUN CLUB.

On Friday last 17 members of the above club met to compete for a gun presented by Messrs. Powell and Sons, of Birmingham. This gun was competed for in Melbourne last November and in Sydney last April, and Mr. H. E. Lord proved the winner. This gentleman returned the gun to the two clubs again for competition, the second and final competition to be held in Melbourne during the Cup week. The conditions are the three highest scorers in the first competition, and the three highest scorers in the second competition are to meet in the final to determine who shall be the winner. The birds were splendid, some regular trimmers being trapped, and the shooters had hard work to kill them. Mr. W. C. Hill (32) was the only one who accounted for all his birds, so he obtained a leg in. Messrs. H. M. Woodhouse (32), G. B. Modeni (32), *S. Grant (31½), G. Harcourt (27), and H. M. Faithfull (32), tied with eight out of nine, and shot on to decide it. Messrs. Woodhouse and S. Grant let their tenth bird escape them, and retired. The eleventh Mr. Faithfull failed to stop, and Messrs. Modeni and Harcourt having killed they, with Mr. Hill, obtained a leg in. Mr. Hill shot his birds in good style, as also Messrs. Modini and and Harcourt. Mr. H. M. Woodhouse shot his first three pigeons—as good as were ever trapped—in splendid style; but he failed later on at an easy one. Appended are the scores:—Gun presented by Messrs. Powell and Son for competition between the Melbourne and New South Wales Gun Clubs' first competition; second to take place in Melbourne during the Cup week.

REVOLT AGAINST THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

The Pall Mall Gazette of August 8 publishes the following protest by Mr. G. Clausen, Mr. Walter Crane, and Mr. Holman Hunt:—

"The Royal Academy has lately rejected proposals to reduce the number of works now allowed to be exhibited by individual artists in its annual exhibition, once more asserting its position as a private society. Surely it is time that this fact should be generally recognised, and that it should be left to enjoy its rights in peace. It may be urged that certain reforms are desirable in the interests of art; but a moment's consideration will show that this is not the point. The Royal Academy has to consider the interests of its members.

"In matters relating to its exhibitions the Royal Academy stands on the same footing with regard to 'outside' artists, as the Society of British Artists, the institutes, and other private societies holding open exhibitions. But these bodies are not asked to reform themselves; and why? Simply because the Royal Academy is looked upon as the national exhibition (and, as such, its imperfections are yearly more apparent).

"This is a delusion for which, doubtless, the Royal Academy is not responsible, as it has always asserted and maintained its privacy.

"There is no national exhibition of art in England.

"The remedy for a state of things which is admittedly unsatisfactory lies, not in trying to force small reforms on a body which regards them as so many curtailments of its own rights, but in the establishment of a really national exhibition; which should be conducted by artists on the broadest and fairest lines—in which no artist should have rights of place; and all works should be chosen by a jury elected by and from all artists in the kingdom."

The Pall Mall Gazette makes the following remarks on the above protest:—

"It may be desirable to recal the circumstances which have led to so important and influential a revolt against the Royal Academy. Twelve months ago a 'Reform Bill' for that body was propounded in these columns by 'An Outsider.' He had been scandalised, as everyone else has been scandalised, by the shameful abuse of their privileges in the matter of wall space by leading academicians, and he set himself to find whether the verdict of the general body of artists was not against the abuse. This be found to be decisively the case, and so great was the interest excited in the matter that it was brought before the General Assembly of the Academy on July 15 last. Mr. Calderon, R.A., proposed than in the rule whereby 'no artist is allowed to send or exhibit more than eight different works,' 'four' works be substituted for 'eight.' The President and most of the better-known Academicians cordially approved our 'Reform Bill,' but those of another sort declined to be done out of their rights by the interference of the press, and the reform was decisively rejected. It is under these circumstances that Messrs. Clausen, Walter Crane, and Holman Hunt have formulated their protest, which will, we believe, be warmly endorsed by the general body of all British artists of any credit and renown."

Mr. Holman Hunt, on the day following the publication of the protest, sent a letter to the editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, in further explanation of his action re the Academy, which is causing such a sensation in art circles:—

"Sir,—It is asked why I joined in making so serious an accusation against the Royal Academy as that published in your journal to-day. My time just now is much taxed, but I will briefly state that from the beginning of my professional experience I have been forced to recognise the institution as the principal cause that England looks upon art as a mere toy, and uses it as this only. When native design was beginning to raise its head to make the experiment—of establishing an academy with Royal favour, despite of the bad examples of such attempts in other countries—it did seem honestly worth trying. Hogarth, Reynolds, and Gainsborough proved what with imperfect schools and appliances English artists might become; with a national academy no excellence should be unattainable. In founding the institution it could scarcely be hoped that the laws laid down should be perfect even for the circumstances of the day. Conditions are much changed since then, yet with continually increasing discontent on the part of all whose opportunities are at stake, the Royal Academy goes on with the same laws which were adopted on its foundation. My declarations of dissatisfaction have always been openly expressed, but I can say that scarcely any Royal Academician I ever knew in his embryo state limited his complaints in measure as I have done. It turned out that their objections were prompted by personal aims. Mine are general grievances. I have long since given up hope of early redress. I can wait content with a protest to win justice for future men, and the protest is that since this institution has been in existence for one hundred and eighteen years, it cannot show men of its training equal to the three fathers of the English school. To be national for our race there must be vitality and health; just wants must be listened to and satisfied. An institution must be representative; it must not say, 'What I once was I ever will be.' Above all things, it must not, as Mr. Burne Jones' apt and beautiful allegory of last Exhibition shows, be the depths of the Dead Sea to which it takes its chosen ones.—Yours obediently, W. HOLMAN HUNT. Aug. 8."

TRADES AND LABOUR MOVEMENTS.

About 320 of the unemployed received free tickets for meals at the office of the Commissioner, Emigration Barracks, Macquarie-street, on Saturday. Each person was supplied with two tickets. A breakfast of bread and cheese was given the unemployed yesterday, and this morning also they will receive a free breakfast. It is now thought that work will be ready for the 200 men mentioned in a previous issue at the National Park on Tuesday, and not to-day, as at first hoped.

A meeting of the Sydney Co-operative Coaling Association, Limited, was held at the Lord Nelson Hotel, Miller's Point, on Saturday afternoon. There was a full attendance of shareholders. Mr. Godbold was voted to the chair. The manager's special report was then read and received. Expenditure and receipts up to date were announced to be:—Expenditure, £70; receipts, £320; balance, £250. The directors stated that they intended to carry £100 to the reserve fund, and announced that the remainder would be devoted to the working fund. A vote of thanks having been given to the directors, the meeting adjourned.

Sir John Savile Lumley has given to the British Museum his fine head and forepart of a horse from a chariot group which was dug up lately at Civita Lavinia (Lanuvium).

In the Import markets to-day business was extremely quiet. Flour is unaltered in value. Foreign markets do not yet show the upward movement anticipated. The latest English cablegrams indicate a steady course of trade, whilst Eastern States' advices are not more than hopeful of improvement. The market in America, indeed, has been fluctuating at a low range of values for some time. The New York Tribune gives the following table, showing the average price of American flour exported in May last as compared with the value at the same period for the past 20 years, viz.:—

Year.	Price per 1000 brls. Dollars.	Year.	Price per 1000 brls. Dollars.
1886	4.729	1876	6.208
1885	4.897	1875	6.001
1884	5.588	1874	7.146
1883	5.956	1873	7.565
1882	6.149	1872	7.141
1881	5.609	1871	6.564
1880	5.878	1870	6.112
1879	5.252	1869	7.735
1878	6.355	1868	10.061
1877	6.479	1867	8.428

It thus appears that this year the price has been the lowest on record, notwithstanding that earlier in the year an advance was anticipated.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

It cannot be said with respect to the Legislative Assembly that practice makes perfect, for as it draws nearer to the end of the session it seems to be getting more indolent and indifferent than ever. The Government has secured two additional days in order to press on the business, and during last week the House was twice counted out. There is no body of men in the country that acts so distinctly in the public light as the Legislative Assembly. Its affairs are fully published in the local press, and a heavy expense is incurred that there may be an official report of the proceedings also. The record, therefore, of its doings and its misdoings is spread broadcast over the land each day, and is also secured a permanent place in the public archives. If publicity could create the sense of responsibility, we might expect then the Legislative Assembly would show that it felt the weight. Yet it is safe to say that there is no body of men in the colony meeting privately to discharge important duties that does not discharge those duties better than the members of the Assembly perform in public the special functions for which they are appointed. There is not a board of directors of any banking company, of any insurance company, of any manufacturing company, that does not go to its work more steadily, and in a more practical and sensible way, than does the Legislative Assembly. In fact, the private business of the country would go to pieces, our great companies would become insolvent, and our commercial credit would be ruined in every part of the world, if the men charged with the management of its business did not show more sense of duty and more common sense than is displayed by the Legislative Assembly in managing the affairs of the country.

And there never was a time when public affairs needed to be handled with more discretion and firmness. It would be an exaggeration to say that the country is in a bad way; but its finances have been mismanaged, we are still overspending our income, and we are borrowing money to be spent on works which will not pay their way for some years to come. For fully twelve months the condition of the exchequer has been under discussion, and yet there is every probability that the present year will close, not only without any reduction in the deficit, but with arrears heavier than they were in January. To confess that this has been the result of all the talk and labour of more than a hundred men during twelve months is to confess that they either cannot or will not do their special duty. As soon as it was known that the expenditure was exceeding the income, it was the bounden duty of Parliament to put things right. Parliament has been at work over the business for twelve months, and things are not put right yet. What are we to say of the Parliament? Is it a machine that is working satisfactorily? Can we in any way whatever pride ourselves on its efficiency? Is there a single neighbouring colony where the Parliamentary work is worse done? The mother colony, which started the system of responsible government in this part of the world, ought to be able to set a good example to the surrounding colonies; yet at the present moment they can all, without injustice, point the finger of reproach at us. The situation is a disgraceful one, and the sooner the reproach is wiped away the better.

Important as the question of finance is, it is not the only one that is pressing for settlement. The colony has reached a point in its development at which an effective system of local self-government has become essential. There is not a thoughtful politician in town or country who does not know this, who does not know the waste that takes place every year from the inevitable maladministration that follows too much centralisation. The Public Works Department is overloaded with duties that could be better performed by local administration, and the political Minister is subjected to pressure from which he ought to be relieved. Till the unlucky deficit turned up to absorb attention this business of establishing local self-government was admitted to be the prime duty of Parliament. Yet another parliamentary year has passed, and nothing whatever has been done towards the settlement of this important question.

The Land Act, too, needs amendment. The broad principles on which the present law was framed are still acceptable to the country, but many of its details require revision, while the rental of the western lands, and the tenant right in improvements have to be re-discussed in the light of fuller information than was at the disposal of the last Assembly. The matter is an urgent one, because a large number of the Crown tenants are kept in a state of suspense. They do not know what to be up to as respects the further improvements they may wish to make, and the financial institutions, from which they must get the necessary money, are chary of making any advances while the question of tenure is unsettled. The matter ought to have been dealt with this session—it ought to have been dealt with by this time, and it is a wrong to the Crown tenant, and a wrong to the country to postpone the settlement unnecessarily. Yet the Assembly has not dealt with it, and cannot deal with it.

It is too late now to redeem the reputation of the present session. We are at the end of September, and the Estimates that ought to have been passed last Christmas are still under discussion. There is nothing to be done but to work hard during the next few weeks at finishing the work on hand as efficiently as possible, but when, after a short recess, the same House meets again, what chance is there that it will do better than it has done? Where does our hope lie of seeing that the chosen men of the country set the best example in debate and in business? There is work enough ahead, and which ought to be done, and done well within the next twelve months. Will the men who have been selected for the purpose do it? The country wants it, and expects it. Will it have again to be disappointed?

The situation in Europe becomes more perplexing and critical. There is widespread uneasiness, provocative of panic and vexatious incertitude. The tortuous ways of diplomacy are oftentimes inscrutable, but at this juncture they are more than ever past finding out. One waits, almost with bated breath, to see what will be the next transformation scene in a drama of surprises. A position of affairs sufficiently entangled and perilous in itself is exacerbated by the insulting attitude of more than one power, Russia and France being foremost in the aggressive and aggravating mood, while England is the object of scarcely disguised hostility. It is notorious that Russia distrusts the present British Government, who in turn will watch vigilantly every move on the Muscovite board. The summoning of the British Ambassador at the Porte to London, with a view to consult with him on the Bulgarian and cognate questions, is significant enough; yet, perhaps, more so is the coming of Nubar Pasha to the English capital, so as to arrange about the indefinite occupation of Egypt. This is in a sense an answer to the worrying demand that England should at an early date evacuate the valley of the Nile, and a defiance of the threat that unless she complies France will maintain and enforce her occupation of the New Hebrides. As regards Egypt the British Government have given no uncertain sound. They have declared that England will not retire from that country until the necessary reforms are completed. Russia, again, is in unfriendly contact with England at several points, and from the Black Sea to the Oxus, her troops have been massed on the Lower Danube, the Black Sea Squadron is cruising off the Roumelian coast, Batoum is being heavily fortified, and the Russian fleet in the Pacific is being largely reinforced. These bellicose preparations in various directions cannot be meaningless. Even as a mere diversion for coercive purposes they would be indicative of ominous difficulties that might possibly be smoothed over temporarily, but which must eventually issue in war. At this untoward season, too, it is ostentatiously announced that an understanding has been arrived at between Russia and France as against England in the Mediterranean and the Far East. Such an alliance, so far as Germany is concerned, has been prevented by the submission of Prince Bismarck to the Czar. Thus looked at from all sides, the complications created are disquieting.

The troubles in Bulgaria have afforded a convenient pretext for the disturbance of harmonious relations in Europe, though with characteristic astuteness the Russian Government has converted them into a lever wherewith to move Germany closer to Russia. The Austrian press loudly complains of Prince Bismarck's disregard of Austria's interests, and the Hungarians are furious at the turn things have taken. Nevertheless Prince Alexander has to all appearance finally yielded. He is said to have consulted Prince Bismarck before deciding to abdicate, a step to which he was advised by the German Chancellor, but which he avowedly adopted at the bidding of the Czar, mainly, as he told the Bulgarian officers, to avert the threatened Russian occupation, and on the assurance that Bulgarian independence would be respected. England, Austria, and Italy have recognised the Regency, which has, however, in fear of a Russian occupation, appealed to the Sultan for protection. This alone would be a very poor reed to rely upon. Turkey meanwhile has been arming vigorously, calling out the reserves in Syria, and making great military operations on the Bulgarian and Armenian frontiers. The Bulgarian Regency, moreover, has resolved to prosecute the leading conspirators against Prince Alexander. The Czar has expressed his willingness to recognise the Regency if it prove capable of maintaining order, and has informed the National Assembly that he will promote the union of Bulgaria and Roumelia; but requests delay in the appointment of another Prince. Such delay would, in all likelihood, be dangerous to Bulgaria, while affording further scope for the operation of Russian intrigues. He has also urged a postponement of the trial of the authors of Prince Alexander's downfall, and his agent at Sofia is reported to have threatened to break off relations with Bulgaria if the culprits are punished. A cablegram which we publish this morning, informs us that the new Russian Agent—General Kaulbars—is the bearer of an ultimatum from the Czar to the Regency, demanding an adjournment of the elections to the Grand Assembly, and the release of the prisoners arrested for the abduction of Prince Alexander. The probability now is that the Regency will defer as far as possible to Russia's desires. Nay, it would seem to be prepared to go further, inasmuch as it has proposed the election of a Russian nominee to the throne of Bulgaria, if this obtains the approval of the Great Powers. Apparently, anything that will obviate the dreaded occupation will be conceded; but with an influential agent in Bulgaria, served by zealous and ever-active Panslavists, Russia must inevitably become master of the situation, unless prevented by the adverse development of exterior affairs. The establishment, as suggested, of a Russian civil and military advisory control would be tantamount to the actual administration of Bulgarian affairs. But on this head other Powers would have their say. Sir JAMES FERGUSSON stated in the House of Commons that although England was not particularly interested in Bulgaria, she would see that any future settlement was based on the Treaty of Berlin. To this end also the Porte has addressed a note to the Powers, urging them to oppose the military intervention of the CZAR. On the other hand, it is matter for astonishment that the official North German Gazette should affirm that peace can only be secured by allowing Russia to interfere in Bulgaria and advance on Stamboul. This cannot be the opinion of Austria, still supposed to be the firm ally of Germany, one of whose great men has said that "the East begins outside the walls of Vienna." For her own sake Austria cannot so suddenly change front.

The hope may be expressed that, notwithstanding the ominous and forbidding signs of the hour, war will be averted. Still, an intolerable condition of things, that begets panic and insecurity, and intensifies the depression from which the whole world is suffering, is little better than a state of war. As the homely proverb has it, "Better cut the finger off than aye have it wagging." The maintenance of the so-called League of Peace is inconsistent with the belligerent spirit that reigns in Europe just now. By siding with Russia, at a sacrifice to her prestige, which the independent press of the country deplores, Germany may checkmate France and ensure tranquillity for the nonce, yet her conduct in this respect cannot fail to offend, if it does not really estrange Austria. It is inconceivable that the old doctrine of compensation regarding the Balkans has been revived, and that Russia and Austria will agree to divide the States between them. This would neither be agreeable to the rest of Europe, nor in accordance with the best interests of the latter empire. Whatever may be the upshot of the present complications, the conviction grows that the demise of the "sick man" is rapidly drawing nigh, and that Europe will ere long be the scene of gigantic hostilities and woeful bloodshed. When diplomacy goes armed, and the mightiest military power consents to temporary effacement, the dangers ahead are not easily magnified.

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Sydney Ragged Schools is to be held this evening. We have been favoured with a copy of the report which is to be submitted to the meeting. It is not quite so full as some of the previous reports, and it omits several important matters which are usually made prominent in such documents. Beyond a brief statement that a new school was opened at Waterloo during the year, there is no information in the report about the progress made by the schools. From a paragraph which conveys the information that two ladies visited the Kent-street school at the June holidays and gave prizes and presents, it is to be inferred that an examination was held in that school to test the intellectual attainments of the pupils. But if an examination was held, the report contains no reference to the result. As there is no hint of prizes having been given to any of the pupils in the Harrington-street and the Glebe schools, the assumption is that those schools were not examined. Are the scholars generally making progress in the rudiments of education? Information on this subject is desired by people who take an interest in the Ragged Schools, and the committee would do well to supply it when presenting their report. There is nothing in the report concerning the income and expenditure, but no doubt a balance-sheet will be read by the treasurer. Half the report consists of extracts from the journals of the teachers. These deal principally with the domestic surroundings of the pupils. It would seem that they are quoted for the purpose of justifying the existence of Ragged Schools; and it may be frankly admitted that the schools accomplish that object. Our system of public instruction provides for the education of the children of drunkards and of the extreme poor, but practically the schools are closed against those classes; and this state of things may be inevitable. The average daily attendance at the Ragged Schools last year was 229, the number on the rolls being 444. The figures prove that the teachers are drawing a considerable number of the waifs and strays into the institutions; and, so far, they are satisfactory. The schools have been in past years the means of forming the character of a goodly number of boys and girls, who, but for their influence, would probably have sunk into degraded habits; and, as there is reason to believe they are still influential in this direction, the fact entitles them to continued support.

Madrid has again been the scene of a military outbreak. In this instance, fortunately, the revolt has been partial and unsuccessful. So far as the tidings to hand show, the insurrectionary plan, if concerted, was not matured, and the rebels and mutineers have had the mortification of being chased and defeated by their own comrades. Warned by this incident, the authorities have arrested notorious Republicans in Madrid and other parts of the country, and have thus probably forestalled any further mischief. That there is a strong, latent, and even at times assertive Republicanism in Spain cannot be denied. There have within the last few years been intermittent manifestations of it, while, on the other side, Carlist outbreaks have become less menacing and dangerous. In the maintenance of the existing regime, LEO XIII. is a recognised powerful influence. The POPE still exercises great authority in Spain, and as he is anti-Carlist as well as anti-Republican, his intervention is a potent support to the reigning dynasty. Apart from this consideration, however, it must be acknowledged that the late King ALFONSO bore himself so well in his high office that he not only caused monarchy to be respected, but zealously laboured to promote the material advancement of his native land, to which he was devotedly attached. Vain were all the efforts to dethrone him, and supplant the kingdom by a republic. Previous sovereigns had been uncrowned either owing to their misdeeds, or because they were aliens. Against him neither charge could be brought. As nearly as possible he was a typical constitutional monarch, and in him Spain lost a statesman as well as a king. On his death the outlook was somewhat gloomy and uncertain. Perceiving this, the Conservative Premier, Senor CANOVAS, resigned voluntarily, so as to avert the detachment from the Liberals of those whose predilections were towards Republicanism. This was an act of patriotism appreciated by the present Liberal Premier, Senor SAGASTA. The political party in power has since received fair play from its opponent, and both have joined in giving the QUEEN-REGENT every consideration in her trying position during the minority of the infant KING. It would, of course, be vain to predict what may be in store for Spain in the future; but this conciliatory disposition is at all events a favourable augury. Last month there was a Ministerial crisis, happily of short duration, and terminating simply in the substitution of one able Cabinet Minister for another. While this is the aspect of affairs the risks from a revolt like that which has just occurred are not formidable or particularly disquieting. In this respect there is a notable difference between it and the old military outbursts, when rival marshals disturbed the country merely to satisfy their own ambition. It is to be hoped for the sake of Spain that the days of such disastrous pronunciamentos are over, and that nothing will now be permitted to divert the current of progress and prosperity which has flowed on so beneficially for some years past.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A CABLEGRAM which we publish this morning announces that the Imperial Parliament has been prorogued until November 11. In addition to the usual assurance that the relations of the Imperial Government with foreign Powers continue to be satisfactory, the Queen's speech deals with the recent crisis in the Balkan Peninsula, with the return of the Afghan Commission, and with the unity of the Empire. A Royal Commission is to be appointed to inquire into matters connected with the tenure of land in Ireland; negotiations are to be undertaken direct for the settlement of the Afghan frontier question; and communications are to be opened with the colonial Governments with a view to further conference on matters of common interest.

THE mails dated London, 20th August, per Carthage, will be due on Tuesday next, in time for delivery to boxholders and delivery windows A to Z, at about 9 a.m., city carriers at 11.30 a.m., and suburban carriers at 2 p.m.

THERE are only three questions on the business-paper of the Legislative Assembly for to-day, and the first order of the day is the further consideration in committee of the Patents and Designs Bill, and after this is disposed of the House will probably be asked to proceed with the Estimates. There are 10 other orders of the day on the paper, including the second reading of the Prince Alfred Hospital Acts Amendment Bill, Blackfriars Estate Streets and Lanes Bill, Government Railways Bill, and Criminal Law Further Amendment Bill.

THE Minister for Public Instruction, in company with Captain Neitenstein, visited the Wolverene on Saturday, and inspected the stores, of which an inventory is being made prior to their final removal from the ship. The guns, &c., are to be landed, and tenders will be called for taking out the machinery, and for the performance of other work necessary to fit the Wolverene for the purposes of a training school. It is understood that an application has been made by one of the neighbouring colonies for the armament of the Wolverene, but it is not improbable that the Government will see the desirableness of retaining the guns for use in connection with the defence of the colony.

YESTERDAY, as on Saturday, the weather was fine, but the sky had a threatening appearance, and, as the day closed in, dark clouds began to work up from the southward and eastward, and a thunderstorm seemed imminent. Beyond some rather vivid flashes of lightning, however, and a fresh breeze from the southward, the storm passed over. At midnight the wind came away in a burst from the southward, and blew hard for some time.

H.M.S. MIRANDA, which left this port in the early part of last month, to convey his Excellency the Hon. J. B Thurston from Suva, Fiji, to attend the conference at Apia, Samoa, in connection with the disposal of the Navigator Islands, returned to Sydney on Saturday. The mission was devoid of incident so far as the man-of-war was concerned.

THE Court of Quarter Sessions will commence sitting at 10 o'clock this morning, at Darlinghurst, before his Honor Judge Murray. Mr. P. J. Healy will prosecute for the Crown. The list comprises about 70 cases, and it is anticipated that the session will last for at least three weeks.

AT the Central Criminal Court on Saturday, Robert Scott Gregory and Charles Aylward were found guilty of uttering a forged warrant and order for the payment of £140 on the 16th of April, at Leichhardt, and a forged warrant and order for the payment of £100 on the 4th of May, at Summer Hill. Gregory was sentenced to five years' penal servitude; and Aylward, whom the jury recommended to mercy, to three years' hard labour in Goulburn gaol. The Court, on rising, adjourned to the 5th October, when the railway frauds cases will be commenced before his Honor the Chief Justice.

MR. MACLAURLIN'S lecture on "Scenes of Paris, Old and New," drew a very good audience to the Temperance Hall on Saturday night. The monuments of Paris were shown, depicting Paris as it was before, during, and after the Commune. The lecturer dwelt upon the architectural beauties of the city, and gave great credit to the municipal council of the French capital for their wise laws relating to architecture, not only of public buildings, but of private residences, for the city has been entirely reconstructed during the last 30 years. Musical selections and some comic illustrations were received with great applause.

WE have been requested to call the attention of the members of the Masonic fraternity attending the ball, which takes place on Tuesday in the Exhibition Building, to the following programme, which has been finally adopted, viz.:—The members of the craft are desired to be present at half-past 8 in the evening to receive the R.W.D.G. Masters of the English and Scotch constitutions and officers of the district grand lodges. The Mayor, Mayoress, and other distinguished visitors will follow, and his Excellency Lord Carrington, Lady Carrington, and suite will be received at 9 o'clock by the R.W.D.G. Masters and Grand Lodge officers. The ball will then be opened by his Excellency.

THE 26th annual meeting of the Sydney Ragged Schools will be held in the Temperance Hall this evening. The chair will be taken by the Hon. Dr. Renwick (Minister for Public Instruction), at half-past 7 o'clock. A number of children from the several schools will be present and will be examined.

THE anniversary of the opening of the new premises of the Young Men's Christian Association was celebrated on Friday evening by a special meeting, which was held in the large hall of the building. There was a large audience present, and the president of the association (Mr. W. J. Foster) occupied the chair. The chairman delivered a brief address, and in the course of his remarks referred to the great progress the association had made. The report for the last 18 months was then read by the secretary (Mr. D. Walker). The report showed that the Sunday evening services, Saturday and Monday evening meetings, and also the Bible class, had all been well attended, and that the mission and hospital work had been carried on with activity and success. Reference was also made in the report to the visits of Mr. Noble and Dr. Grattan Guinness. About 80 young men in needy circumstances had been provided with permanent situations through the instrumentality of the association. The membership of the association had increased largely, the number of members at present being 945, of whom 560 had joined during the past eight months. Mr. John Kent submitted the financial statement. A short address upon the mission work of the association was delivered by Mr. R. Nall. Addresses were also delivered by Messrs. H. A. Fry and H. Peach. This closed the meeting, and the visitors afterwards inspected different portions of the building, such as the library, reading-room, and gymnasium.

THERE was a very large attendance at Randwick on Saturday last to witness the last day's racing of the A. J. C. The Hurdle Race went to Javelin, the Members' Handicap to Bravo, the Randwick Plate to Trident, the Waverley Handicap to Coriolanus, the Steeplechase to Kangaroo, and the Free Handicap to The Agent. A full report of the proceedings appears in another column.

A SPECIAL general meeting of the members of the Great Synagogue was held at the New Masonic Hall on Sunday morning, convened to receive a report from the President as to an error in the return of the scrutineers in the recent ballot for committeemen, and to consider and determine what further action, if any, may be expedient. The Hon. H. E. Cohen, President, in opening the meeting, remarked that he hoped good sense and kind feeling, which had always marked the proceedings on similar occasions, would keep them from personalities, and he appealed to the members present to confine themselves to the business for which the meeting was called by him. As the members were aware, a discrepancy was found out by the secretary in the returns, as shown by the ballot-papers, after he had declared the names of the gentlemen elected, and that having gone through the papers himself and found that such was the case, he sought the legal opinion of Mr. Julian E. Salomons and Mr. Simpson, who declared that the members of the present board were legally elected. He, however, considered that the matter should be brought before them, and now left it in their hands. The scrutineers, Messrs. M. Mitchell, L. Levy, and N. Hermann explained that their duties were honestly and faithfully performed, and that after the ballot papers were handed to the secretary the control of them was no longer their duty, and that having been open to the view of some half-dozen gentlemen, it was likely that some of the papers were mislaid. Mr. Garcia pointed out the illegality of the whole proceedings, owing to the manner in which the scrutineers had conducted their duties, and moved,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, the election of officers which took place on Sunday, the 5th September, at the Great Synagogue Chambers, was illegal, inasmuch as an alleged error had occurred in the making up of the ballot, the correction not having transpired until after the holding of the meeting, and therefore another election for a board of management should be held in a proper and legal manner." This being seconded by Mr. Ellis, the Hon. S. A. Joseph moved as an amendment,—"That, in view of the report of the president, viz., that at the late election of gentlemen to fill the office of committee for the ensuing Jewish year an incorrect return was made by the scrutineers, whereby the whole of the members then declared as elected were in reality not so elected in accordance with the ballot-papers, it is desirable, in the interest of the institution, that there be a new election of the eight committeemen, and that in order to carry out this view the eight gentlemen who were declared to be elected at the meeting held on the 5th instant be respectfully invited to tender their resignations." Seconded by Mr. A. Rogalsky. A further amendment was moved by Mr. E. Cohen, and seconded by Mr. M. Mitchell,—"That the name of the vice-president, Mr. G. J. Cohen, be included in the names of the eight committeemen." The amendments being put to the meeting, the president declared it carried, and the resolution lost. The remarks made by the Hon. S. A. Joseph in introducing his amendment tended in a marked degree to lessen the feeling of bitterness which has prevailed in the community for the last fortnight, and assisted in no small degree to reduce what at one part of the meeting was likely to have had an unpleasant ending to that of peace and harmony. Prior to the termination of the meeting the following gentlemen of the committee handed in their resignations:—Messrs. D. Mitchell, L. Cohen, E. Meyer, H. Solomon, B. F. Marks, C. Cantor, M. Myers, and the Hon. H. E. Cohen. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the president for the able manner he had conducted the meeting, which closed the proceedings.

IN reference to the case Guilfoyle and another v. Guyenot reported on Friday last, Messrs. Guilfoyle and Parsons write:—"Your report would seem to lead to the inference that we did not procure the appointment for defendant as agreed upon. The evidence showed that the appointment and salary, according to agreement, were procured for Dr. L. Guyenot at the time—namely, December, 1885—and that he still occupied and enjoyed the position."

ON Saturday afternoon visitors to Bondi witnessed the somewhat unusual sight of a school of whales blowing a mile off the shore. They swam about for a considerable time apparently undisturbed by a passing steamer and fishing boats, and when last seen at dusk they were heading slowly towards the south. Whales were also seen off Dee Why Head one afternoon last week.

YESTERDAY afternoon a postman named Michael Kelly was thrown from his horse in Argyle-street, and was rendered unconscious. He was removed to the Sydney Hospital by a constable, and was at once admitted to the institution. The patient was then bleeding from an ear and nostril. He has lately resided at No. 56, Cumberland-street.

AN elderly man was killed on the railway line at Blacktown Junction some time during Saturday night. It is presumed that he was run over by the train which leaves Blacktown for Windsor at 12.50 a.m. His body, which was considerably mutilated, reached Parramatta at 5 o'clock on Sunday morning in a goods train, and now awaits identification.

A YOUNG man named Frank Moss, a resident of Auburn, met with a painful accident while playing cricket at Parramatta on Saturday afternoon. While running between the wickets he collided with the player approaching from the opposite end and fell, his head striking the asphalt wicket in falling. He was partially stunned by the concussion, and it was found necessary to remove him to the Parramatta Hospital, where he was admitted.

AN accident which nearly proved of a very serious character happened at about 10.30 a.m. yesterday, at the intersection of Elizabeth and Hunter streets. A combined motor and car from the railway station had turned the sharp curve and mounted upon the steep gradient at the spot mentioned, and was proceeding to the Bridge-street terminus. When turning into Phillip-street it suddenly stopped for want of steam-power, and then commenced to run backwards. At this moment full steam was already being put on to the motor of a Woollahra tram, which had arrived at Hunter-street, in order to be able to mount the gradient. Serious consequences were averted by the fireman of the motor forming part of the Woollahra tram smartly advising the engine driver of the danger ahead. A collision, however, occurred, and several ladies who were in the tram-cars were very much shaken. There was no flagman on the spot at the time, although one is generally on duty in this locality.

SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

BEACH AGAIN VICTORIOUS.

[BY CABLE.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, SEPT. 25.

The sculling match between William Beach and Wallace Ross, the American oarsman, for the Championship of the World, was rowed over the championship course on the Thames, from Putney to Mortlake, this afternoon. The weather was fine, and there was a fair attendance. The tide was poor. The betting was 5 to 2 on Beach, who chose the Surrey side. Ross got slightly the best of the start, rowing 33 to the minute, while Beach was rowing 35. The Australian, however, soon began to overhaul his opponent, and by the time that the Star and Garter was reached he had gained a lead of a clear length. Beach continued to increase his advantage, and opposite Rosebank he was four lengths in advance of Ross, and rowing easily. Ross spurted at the Soap Works, but he was unable to decrease the gap between the two boats. In order to avoid some barges on the river at Hammersmith, Beach steered for the centre arch of the bridge, but suddenly returned to the arch on the Surrey side. He shot the bridge half a length in front of Ross, and, pulling a strong stroke, he rapidly regained his advantage, and opposite Barnes was 10 lengths ahead. From this point out the race was all over. Beach paddled leisurely home, and won easily by four lengths in 23 minutes 5 seconds. Ross passed the winning-post 12 seconds later.

When near Hammersmith Bridge the two men drew close together, and there was a narrow escape from a foul.

THE IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT PROROGUED.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, SEPT. 25.

Parliament was prorogued to-day by Commission until November 11. The Queen's speech states that the relations with the foreign Powers continue satisfactory. Referring to the recent crisis in the Balkan Peninsula, it states that a mutiny amongst a portion of the Bulgarian army led Prince Alexander to abdicate, and a Regency had been established to administer the affairs of the country, and make the necessary preparations for the election of a successor in conformity with the Treaty of Berlin. The signatory Powers had assured the Porte that there will be no infraction of the conditions guaranteed to Bulgaria under the treaty in question. The speech alludes to the return of the Afghan Commission, and adds that it is intended to undertake negotiations direct with Russia to settle the frontier question. It is announced that a royal commission will be issued to inquire into matters connected with the tenure of land in Ireland. In conclusion her Majesty states that she has observed with much satisfaction the interest evinced by the people of the British isles in the welfare of their colonial and Indian fellow subjects, and this fact has led to the conviction on all sides of a growing desire to draw closer the bonds for uniting the Empire. Her Majesty has therefore authorised communications to be opened with the principal colonial Governments with the view to a further conference on matters of common interest.

Wood, the Queensland representatives, left for Sydney yesterday.

CARDINAL MORAN IN THE BERRIMA DISTRICT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MOSS VALE, SATURDAY.

His Eminence Cardinal Moran was met at the top of Kangaroo Mountain on Thursday afternoon by 40 members of the Catholic laity of the district and escorted to the Burrawang, where he was presented with an address. Accompanied by large numbers of Catholics on horseback and in buggies, he was driven through Moss Vale into Berrima, and this morning held a confirmation service at Moss Vale. He was met at the precincts of the convent by some 120 children, dressed in white, and escorted through a triumphal arch to the church door. The accommodation of the church was entirely inadequate for the immense number of people who thronged the building from all parts to witness the interesting sight. The Cardinal addressed 150 adults and the children whom he was about to confirm, upon the solemnity of the sacrament. The service was completed by a few flattering remarks on the efficiency of the children in religious knowledge. On leaving the church he was presented with an address from Berrima, Sutton Forest, Moss Vale, Bowral, and Mittagong, to which Dr. Moran made a most eloquent reply. He left Moss Vale at 3 o'clock for Berrima via Sutton Forest. He will preach at Berrima on Sunday. He has promised a church to Bowral, subject to his approval of an already chosen site

Edgar, a ... it said to have brought seven pounds of gold ... the field, the results of sales of provisions. ...y on the field are suffering from scurvy. The ...st report now is that some are doing fairly well. The captain of the Otway says it is impossible to obtain authentic information in Derby. Personally he believes the goldfield to be a huge swindle, and that it will enrich none, but prove disastrous to thousands. The rains, which are so eagerly awaited, will only bring sickness and death. He urges, in the strongest terms, miners of New South Wales not to be gulled by reports spread by unprincipled persons, and says that May next will be ample time to leave from the South for the diggings, provided the field proves payable.

THE TARAGO-BRAIDWOOD RAILWAY.

PUBLIC REJOICING AT BRAIDWOOD.

[By Telegraph.]

(From our own reporter.)

BRAIDWOOD, Saturday.

Braidwood was en fête to-day, in connection with a banquet which was held for the purpose of expressing satisfaction in regard to the passing of the local railway scheme. A public holiday had been proclaimed, and numbers of country visitors were present from all parts. A number of members of the Legislative Assembly reached Tarago by the mail train this morning, and were driven by a coach and five to Braidwood, about 32 miles distant. The visitors included Mr. Ryrie, member for the district; Messrs. Ball, O'Sullivan, Wall, Ives, Williamson, Lysaght, Kidd, Hyam, Barbour, and Hungerford, Ms.L.A. The party were met about half a mile from town by the Braidwood band and a cavalcade of equestrians and buggies, and were escorted through the main thoroughfare. The buildings were elaborately decorated, flags being extended over the street and most of the prominent stores and buildings were bedecked with bunting. The visitors were conveyed to the Albion Hotel, where large crowds congregated. A large banner was here displayed bearing the words "Welcome Ryrie."

The Banquet.

In the evening a public banquet was held at the Literary Institute. Mr. Robert Maddrell, J.P., presided; and Mr. J. W. Bunn, J.P., occupied the vice-chair. About 120 guests were present. Apologies for non-attendance were read from Messrs. Davies, Melville, Dawson, Tait, H. Stephen, H. Clarke, W. Clarke, Holborow, Butcher, O'Connor, and the Attorney-General. Amongst the formal toasts, that of "The Governor" was received most vociferously.

The Chairman, in proposing "The Parliament," alluded to the difficulties which members had been forced to labour under by reason of the protracted hours of sitting, the vexatious delays, and the tiring work to which members and Ministers alike had been subjected.

The toast was responded to by Mr. Hungerford, who spoke strongly in favour of the general principle of railway extension throughout the colony. Despite what a few political antediluvians in Parliament saw fit to say to the contrary, only eight political Rip Van Winkles had opposed the Braidwood vote, and it was beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Upper House would endorse it.

Mr. Barbour also replied.

Mr. Rowland Hassall proposed "The health of Mr. Ryrie."

Mr. Ryrie, in responding, alluded to the fact that it was no wonder that many of our lines did not pay, seeing that the cost of their working was so great. Another reason why some lines did not pay was because of mismanagement. He contended that no line had been passed which would yield a better return than the Tarago-Braidwood one. Various objections had been raised against the project; but when the matter came to be looked into it would be found that the outcry had originated from those who knew nothing about the district and its vast resources in gold and other minerals, apart altogether from its capabilities for raising grain and produce.

Messrs. O'Sullivan, Williamson, Ives, Bull, Lysaght, Hyam, and Kidd also spoke. An allusion by the latter gentleman to the services of Sir John Robertson evoked loud and long continued cheering.

The toast of "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers" was responded to by Captain Wallace, of the Braidwood Volunteer Corps. "The Press," "The Ladies," "The Chairman," "The Vice-Chairman," and "Mr. O'Neill, late Engineer-in-Chief for New Zealand," were the concluding toasts, and the banquet closed shortly after 11 o'clock.

VOLUNTEER ENCAMPMENT AT CAMPBELLTOWN.

[By Telegraph.]

(From our own reporter.)

CAMPBELLTOWN, Sunday.

The military camp, the formation of which was mainly owing to the efforts of the Campbelltown Infantry Reserve Corps, and the energetic action of Captain Moore and the leading residents of the district, is now in full swing. The town is full of visitors, and much interest is taken in the encampment and the manœuvres of the citizen soldiers, many of whom have come from the far interior to learn some of the rudiments of warfare and gain experience of life in the field. Some time ago the Campbelltown Volunteers started a movement which had for its object the raising of funds for the purpose of enabling them to defray the necessary expenses of undergoing a course of training under canvas. The officers and men worked hard to bring the scheme to a successful issue, and the citizens and leading inhabitants of the district subscribed so liberally that sufficient funds were speedily raised to allow the men to go into camp when convenient. Amongst the most prominent and energetic supporters of the movement were Mr. Gilbert, proprietor of the Forbes Hotel, Campbelltown, and Mr. Gore, manager of the Commercial Bank. When the sinews of war were forthcoming, Captain Moore represented to Colonel Eden, commanding officer of the Second Brigade, the desire of the Campbelltown Reserve Corps to have a few days training under canvas. Colonel Eden fell in with the idea, and gave permission for the formation of the encampment. The Campbelltown volunteers then, through their captain, invited the officers and men belonging to the Camden and Picton Reserve Infantry Corps to be present at the camp. The latter corps willingly responded to the invitation. It was then decided to invite 10 men from the Reserve Corps at Albury, Hay, Narandera, Young, Braidwood, and Mittagong to join the camp for the purpose of receiving instruction in drill, &c. These men were invited because it was thought, after undergoing a period of three days' instruction, they would be enabled when they returned to form a nucleus for future encampments, and to impart instruction in military matters to their comrades who had not been able to attend the encampment. When Captain Moore proposed the formation of the camp to Colonel Eden, Major-General Richardson decided to hold the annual inspection of the Campbelltown, Camden, and Picton Reserve Corps instead of reviewing the men at their own towns, thus effecting a saving of time and money. It had been arranged that the men should go into camp on Saturday morning, and remain under canvas for three days, but the Albury detachment, consisting of nine men, arrived about 5 o'clock on Friday morning, and took up their ground, and, with the assistance of the staff-sergeant, they pitched tents for the men expected to arrive from distant parts of the colony on the following day. Captain Bayly, brigade adjutant instructing officer of the Infantry, arrived by road the same afternoon. He was accompanied by Captain Bartlett, adjutant of the 1st regiment, Lieutenant Wilson, of the 5th Scottish regiment, who remained in camp as visitors. The Mittagong detachment, consisting of 10 non-commissioned officers and men), the Young detachment (11 non-commissioned officers and men), Narrandera detachment (9 non-commissioned officers and men), Hay detachment (9 non-commissioned officers and men), and Albury detachment (9 noncommissioned officers and men), arrived at Campbelltown early on Saturday morning. They marched into camp, and pitched their tents. During the same morning the Camden Corps, 30 strong, under Captain Downes, Lieutenant Eager; the Picton Corps, numbering 32 men, under the command of Captain Antill; the Campbelltown Corps, under Captain Moore and Lieutenants Brodie and Campbell, a total of 27 men, marched into camp. The bands of the Campbelltown and Picton Corps, under Bandmaster Douglas, 1st Regiment, were present. The staff consists of the following:—Colonel Eden commanding the 2nd Brigade, Captain Bayly Adjutant 2nd Brigade, acting as instructing officer; Sergeant-Major Liggins, Staff-Sergeants Sullivan, Sadler, Brennan, Conway. As the different corps arrived on the ground they were told off to pitch their own tents. The operation was creditably performed. The necessary conveniences for camp life were constructed, and everything was in perfect order on Saturday evening, the first guards being mounted for 12 hours only at half-past 6 o'clock. The total number at the encampment on Saturday night was 180 of all ranks.

The camp is situated on a commanding knoll, about a mile from the railway station. The paddock in which the tents are erected was lent by Mr. James Russell, a well-known resident of Campbelltown. From the summit of the hill a magnificent view of the surrounding country can be obtained, as the site of the canvas town overlooks a quaint old time settlement, a large extent of cultivated ground, and peaceful homesteads in the rear, with the Picton ranges standing out boldly in the distance. The tents are erected in two long rows on the crest of the hill, 34 in all, including those used by the guard and orderly. There is ample accommodation for the men who are, so far, well satisfied with their experience of life in the field. The rations supplied by the Government are of a capital description. It may be mentioned that beyond providing instruction, rations, tents, and other bare necessaries by the Government, the cost of the encampment is borne by the Campbelltown volunteers, who have shown a splendid spirit, and set a good example to the others by giving their time and money for the purpose of receiving instruction under canvas.

Yesterday afternoon a mounted party, consisting of Captain Bayly, accompanied by Captain Bartlett, Lieutenants Wilson and Brodie, proceeded to reconnoitre the precincts of the camp for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the country for attack and defence purposes, as there will be a sham fight after the review to-morrow. On returning, the officers and men were exercised in saluting drill and other manœuvres. A large number of visitors watched the proceedings with interest. After the sounding of the retreat, considerable merriment prevailed until the bugle sounded lights out, when the occupants of the camp relapsed into a state of comparative silence. The sentries were constantly visited during the night. Nearly everybody was astir when the réveille was sounded at half-past five o'clock this morning. The air was raw, and a cold mist enshrouded the distant hills. The men paraded at seven o'clock, and were exercised in battalion drill and afterwards advanced in column formation. They were then marched past in quarter column and at the double. The movements were repeated several times, Captain Bayly instructing the officers and men clearly beforehand. The men, who were in some cases badly handled by their officers, marched unsteadily, and their doubling was indifferent. They display considerable aptitude in picking up the drill, and will do very well with more practice. Considering the little drill many of the men have had, they did remarkably well. Colonel Eden addressed them, and said he was pleased with their attention. He thought they would improve considerably before leaving the camp.

Later.

The men attended Divine service to-day, the respective places of worship being well filled. They went through some preliminary drill for to-morrow's operations. This afternoon many visitors inspected the encampment, which looked quite gay. Good health prevails. At the time of writing, the weather is dull and threatening rain. About 30 men belonging to the local corps came in this morning. There are over 200 rank and file in camp now. To-morrow has been proclaimed a public holiday for the district of Campbelltown, Camden, and Picton, in consequence of the review of the troops and sham fight which is expected to take place. The camp breaks up on Tuesday morning. The Albury, Hay, Narrandera, Young, Braidwood, and Mittagong contingents leave on Monday night.

SPREADING CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—"Mater's" letter in Wednesday morning's Herald, I have no doubt will do some good in drawing public attention to the carelessness and indifference shown in cases of the kind, she refers to; and being a fellow sufferer, I can sympathise with her, and appreciate her motive in writing to you on the subject; but I cannot agree with her that our schools and medical gentlemen are the chief mediums in spreading contagious diseases. My opinion, if I may be allowed to express one, is that bad drainage, and the filthy habits of many people in allowing putrid matter to lie about their yards for days, and the neglect of landlords in not keeping their properties in a habitable condition except on compulsion, more especially in the poorer class of houses. On the premises I now rent there is a bad-smelling drain, the attention of the health officer was drawn to it months ago, but nothing has been done, and it is still in the same horrible condition. These things and others I could mention are far more potent in propagating diseases than are the medical profession, who in my experience, both here and in England, are most careful in using the necessary disinfectants on leaving their patients.

With regard to the special case of scarlatina mentioned in "Mater's" letter, I have no doubt, though she has been been careful not to mention the name—a needless precaution on her part—as every one who reads the daily papers must know that she refers to my family, but she has been unfortunately misinformed as to the real facts, which are as follows:—Some six weeks ago, on the return of my children from school, the youngest was found to be ill, and died in about 26 hours after from what Dr. Milford pronounced to be suffused scarlatina. Every precaution was taken with the other children, and they were at once removed from the school. Shortly after, the eldest boy—the only one who has shown as yet any symptoms of the disease—was taken ill, I had him at once removed to a room built away from the house, and as completely isolated as if I had taken him to a separate house. Since then I have not allowed anyone to come near him but myself and Dr. Milford, who is most particular in using disinfectants after each visit. I have not been to business during his illness, and have never left him day or night, except to bring him what he required. My wife, it is true, continued going to business, but was not allowed to go near her children except on Sundays, and on leaving for business always disinfected. I will leave you and your readers to judge wherein I have been guilty in not taking proper precautions as inferred in "Mater's" letter. My wife has been requested by the firm to leave business for an indefinite period, and needless alarm has been created in hundreds of families by her injudicious letter.

I am, &c.,
JOHN BEAUMONT.

The petition was referred to the works committee. Reports: The finance committee submitted a report and recommended the payment of accounts amounting to £76 13s. The accounts were passed. The auditors presented a report upon their audit of the council's books for the half-years ended February 1st, 1886, and August 2nd, 1886. The tenor of the report was that in the latter half-year there was a manifest improvement in the manner in which the books had been kept. The report was adopted. A report from the improvement committee was read and received. The inspector of nuisances presented a report upon a nuisance alleged to be caused by the vapours arising from a boiling-down establishment situate between Miller and West streets, near Rosalind-street. The report was referred to a special committee, in order that the matter might be investigated. Motions: The following motions were passed:—By Alderman Phillips,—"That Alderman Massey be appointed to countersign cheques signed by the Mayor or acting mayor." By Alderman Cowles,—"That Alderman A. Armstrong be acting mayor at all meetings of the council during the absence of the Mayor, with full powers of the Mayor during such absence." CONCORD.

The Concord Municipal Council met on Thursday evening last, the Mayor (Mr. Chapman) in the chair. There were also present—Aldermen Joselyn, Twine, Flavelle, Bray, and Toeller. In a letter received from the Department of Mines, it was intimated that the application made by the council for a site for a town hall had been entertained. The finance committee submitted a report, which showed that the credit balance at the bank, at date, was £557 9s. 2d. It was resolved that, in consequence of several robberies having been committed of late in the district, application be made to the proper authorities for additional police protection. Some motions to authorise necessary works being carried out were agreed to.

FLOWER SHOWS.

ST. LEONARDS.

The flower show and sale of gifts which was opened in the Masonic Hall, St. Leonards, on Thursday afternoon last was finally closed shortly after 10 o'clock on Saturday night. The undertaking, the third of its kind held in the district, was a thorough success, and has given complete satisfaction to the committee to whom the work of organisation was entrusted. It is estimated that the receipts taken on Saturday will be found to amount to about £70, so that if this estimate should prove correct the total receipts for the three days will be about £165. After incidental expenses have been paid, there will be a substantial balance to hand over for the benefit of the St. Leonards Wesleyan Trust Fund. As the hour on Saturday evening grew late the petals of the flowers began to fall freely, the decorations lost their freshness, and stalls were left comparatively barren, and the fair attendants showed slight signs of fatigue. The large number of visitors to the show in the afternoon gave to the scene a very animated appearance, and in the evening the attendance was so large as to be a source of discomfort to many. The visitors were invited and entreated by the fair attendants of the respective bowers to become the possessors of monster bouquets, exquisitely pretty fans, choice hot-house plants, and even dolls and pincushions. The variety of the objects to be disposed of was all but endless, and the inducements held forth to prospective buyers were proportionately numerous. While some of the fair ones kept watch over their remaining stock, others filled baskets with "button-holes" and set out to collect funds from those visitors who were either seated or standing in the centre of the hall listening to the music that had been provided for their entertainment. By this means, the petites morceaux soon were removed from the baskets, and were fastened to dresses and coats with amazing rapidity, in consequence of which, silver coins speedily passed from hand to hand. Among the objects of admiration presented to the committee for the purposes of the show were a pair of Corinthian vases mounted upon Doric pedestals. The vases were made at Mr. Gibson's pottery at North Shore, and were subsequently ornamented by Mr. H. B. Thorne, of St. Leonards. Mr. Thorne also manufactured the pedestals. On Saturday evening the following programme of music was efficiently performed:—Overture, "Poet and Peasant"; duet, "Marche Hongroise," Misses M'Crea and Horsey; song, "Maid of Athens," Mr. J. Ferriday; selection, "Caliph of Bagdad"; duet, "L'Ecume de Mer," the Misses Kelynack; song, "London Bridge," Miss Harper; pianoforte solo, "Tambour Battant," Miss M'Crea; trio, No. VI., Haydn; song, "Romany Lass," Mr. S. James; song, "The Soldier's Dream of Home," Mr. J. Ferriday; song, "Yesterday," Miss Selfe; pianoforte solo, "The Star-spangled Banner;" "My Sweetheart when a Boy," Mr. S. James;" waltz, "Mikado." The instrumental music was contributed as follows:—Piano, Miss G. Kelynack; first violin, Mr. Blomgren; second violin, Mr. Beauman; viola, Mr. Webber, violoncello, Mr. Phillips. The members of the committee, the honorary secretaries, and the other ladies and gentlemen who so cheerfully rendered their aid in bringing the movement to a successful issue and maintaining it at this point of perfection must be heartily applauded for having thus earnestly put forward their efforts in support of so good a cause. Should any of the workers, however, identify themselves with any future flower show that may be held in the district, they will do well to acquire the use of more extensive premises than those secured hitherto.

MARRICKVILLE.

The flower show which was held in the premises of St. Clement's (Church of England), Marrickville, during portion of last week, closed on Saturday night after a most successful time. The stalls which, after three days, might reasonably have been expected to look somewhat the worse for wear, have, however, no such appearance, but were as fresh and inviting as ever, having been newly decorated over-night. The lady vendors also kept up their spirits in spite of the large amount of work they had gone through, and were just as successful in keeping the business of the show lively as they had been on previous days. An additional attraction was afforded by the performance of popular selections of music during the afternoon and evening by the band of the 2nd Regiment V. I. The show was closed shortly after 10 o'clock, when the flowers which remained on hand were disposed of by the process known as "Bruce auction." It is estimated that about 3000 persons visited the show during the three days it remained open, and fully £200 was taken. Altogether, the promoters have ample cause to congratulate themselves on the success of the affair, both financially and otherwise. The proceeds will, as we have stated, be divided equally between the St. Clement's and Congregational Churches, Marrickville.

BOARD OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

A meeting of the Board of Technical Education was held on Wednesday afternoon at the offices, 129, Phillip-street. The following members were present: Mr. H. C. Russell (acting-president), Mr. W. H. Edmunds, Mr. Travers Jones, M.L.A., Mr. Alexander Kethel, M.L.A., Mr. R. L. Murray, Mr. S. W. Moore, M.L.A., Mr. J. N. Oxley, Mr. Norman Selfe, and Mr. C. S. Wilkinson. Amongst the correspondence submitted were a number of letters relating to departmental matters. Mr. Travers Jones presented nuts of the boab tree, resembling cocoanuts stripped of their fibrous bark, and found in great quantities at Kimberley, Western Australia, respecting which Mr. Stockdale stated that "the kernel of the nuts is used for food by the aborigines, and the small brown seeds when baked and crushed make an excellent substitute for coffee." A copy of the report received from Baron von Mueller respecting the alleged disease in maize crops was referred to the Instructor in Agriculture. Mr. W. H. Lang was appointed to temporarily conduct the woolsorting class during the absence of the teacher. An application from the secretary of the Newcastle School of Arts to retain photographs of machinery and plaster casts exhibited at the recent conversazione was granted. Letters were received from the science masters at Bathurst and Goulburn, intimating that offers of prizes had been received for deserving students of the branch technical schools in these localities. A donation from Mr. A. B. Dunslow for a prize for students in the practical chemistry classes at the Technical College was accepted with thanks. The instructor in agriculture reported that at each of his lectures at Goulburn, Picton, and Taralga there was an average attendance of 132 persons. The tender of the Liverpool, London, and Globe Insurance Company to insure the board's property in Sydney was accepted. Tenders were received and accepted for alterations and appliances required at the Technical College. A progress report submitted by the technical agencies committee, and containing, amongst others, the following recommendations, was received and adopted:—"1. That an application for the formation of an architectural drawing class at Parramatta be considered when funds are available for the purpose. 2. That popular science lectures be delivered by the following gentlemen in the technical hall: Dr. Roth, one additional "Ambulance" lecture; John Connery, one on "Elocution in the Expression of the Passions;" B. O. Meek, one introductory lecture on "Veterinary Science;" E. C. Wood, five on "Asphalt," "Scientific use of Explosives in Rock-working," "The Useful Alloys," "Work and Friction," and "Sources of Work." 3. That the services of the teacher of the freehand drawing class at Lambton be transferred to Adamstown if the necessary number of students enrol themselves. 4. That in future the Singleton art classes be held in the Public school instead of at the Mechanics' Institute. Monthly accounts were passed for payment on recommendation of finance committee. Returns were received of lessons and lectures given in Technical College and country schools, including a statement showing an average attendance of 283 persons at each of seven popular science lectures delivered in the Technical Hall. After other routine business was transacted, the meeting adjourned to 13th October.

BREAD OR WORK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—That a number of able working men bearing a banner with the above device should be seen parading the streets of Sydney, is a phenomenon that raises a question as to the wisdom of our legislation.

Although, as your special commissioner has told us, there are twenty millions acres of land in New South Wales more or less infested with pine scrub, yet so unworkable are the clauses of the present Land Act relating to scrub leases that not one scrub lease has yet been issued. To ringbark and scrub 20,000,000 acres will cost £3,000,000 sterling spread over a term of about six years. This would provide work at good wages for 5000 men while it lasted.

Meantime the scrub is growing denser daily, and is becoming more difficult to eradicate.

If Australian Crown tenants were allowed that which has been conceded to tenants in the old country, namely, a tenant-right interest in their improvements, then this work would commence at once.

The same disability clings to every tenure which our Parliament has devised, and perhaps the hardship is more damaging in the case of the homestead lessee, the new sheep farmer of the Western division, than in any other case. The squatter has a certain backing in his dams and tanks made on purchased land, but the homestead tenant cannot use an acre of the dry patch of run which the law gives him without sinking his resources to an extent that a fair tenant-right rate of compensation alone can justify.

In the Central division, where the rainfall is better than in the Western, improvement is also necessary, and with the smaller area allowed for settlement, namely 2560 acres, it is essential that the land must be made the most of to give the selector a living.

This cannot be done unless the tenant-right principle is fully recognised.

A short Amending Land Bill, providing this equitable concession and a liberal scrub-lease clause, would give a welcome start to industry up the country, and would provide a field for the unemployed who are now gathering in Sydney.

I am, &c.,
40, Hunter-street. Sept. 24. GEORGE RANKEN.

SHIPPING REPORTS, &c.

Custom House.—Entered Outwards: September 25. Wild Wave, brig, 173 tons, Captain Davies, for Auckland via Newcastle; Manhegan, barque, 1143 tons, Captain A. Poulsen, for Newcastle; Thurso, barque, 490 tons, Captain J. Scouller, for Mauritius via Newcastle; Andrina, four-masted ship, 2636 tons, Captain A. Campbell, for Newcastle.

H.M.S. Miranda, which left here on August 6 last, for the purpose of conveying the Hon. J. B. Thurston from Suva to Apia, Samoa, to attend the international convention held there to decide as to the future of the Navigator Islands, returned to Sydney on Saturday morning, anchoring in Farm Cove at about 7.30. Fine weather prevailed on the voyage from Sydney to Suva, and the vessel reached the Fijian capital on August 17. After embarking Mr. Thurston and his private secretary, also the secretary to the Commission, she sailed for Apia on the 20th August, and had light winds and fine weather till arrival at that port on August 24. Next day the French corvette Decrès arrived from Tahiti, having on board a Roman Catholic ecclesiastic, who was on a mission tour through the group; and she left again on September 2. All was quiet at the islands when the Miranda was there, the only incident of note that occurred being the arrival of the Rev. A. B. Suter, D.D., Bishop of Nelson, N.Z., by the steamer Janet Nicoll, who was on a mission tour among the islands, in the interests of the Church of England. The convention having finished its sittings on September 5, his Excellency the High Commissioner and suite re-embarked, as did also Dr. Suter, who was given a passage to Suva by the captain, and the Miranda left again on the return voyage. A call was made at Pango Pango and Keppel Island, Mr. Thurston landing at each place. While she was at Pango Pango, the American corvette Mohican arrived from Auckland, and reported having experienced some very heavy weather on the voyage across. The Miranda arrived at Suva on the 11th instant, and after coaling left again for Sydney on the 13th. Strong favourable winds were met with throughout the voyage, which, with the exception of a 12 hours' trial under steam, during which a speed of 10 knots was averaged, was made wholly under sail. Scarcely had the vessel brought up than she received orders to again prepare for service. It was believed that the present cruise would be the last the Miranda would make in Australian waters, but should the Rapid, her relieving vessel, not arrive in time, and a ship be required, the Miranda will be dispatched. Otherwise she will leave for England.

The barque Zoila, which has previously voyaged to this port, arrived on Saturday morning from Puget Sound with a full cargo of timber. Captain M'Kay reports that she sailed from Tacoma on June 23, and experienced light winds from N. to N.N.W. till striking the N.E. trades, in about lat 27° N. These winds were from light to moderate, and gave out in lat. 12° N., whence light and variable southerly winds were had down to lat. 5° N., where the S.E. trades were picked up. Crossing the Line on August 1 in long. 149° W., the Zoila had light S.E. trades down to about lat. 20° S., and light W.S.W. and westerly winds, with thick foggy weather from there for a fortnight afterwards. Variable winds followed till the 15th instant, when the wind became strong and squally. Sydney light was sighted on Friday night, and the Heads were entered at 11.10 a.m. on Saturday. The Zoila was towed by the Leveret to an anchorage in Neutral Bay.

The three-masted schooner Empress of India, which made her first appearance in this port on Saturday afternoon, is from the River Mersey, Tasmania, with a freight of potatoes. Messrs. Facy and Fisher, of Hobart, are the owners of the vessel, which was built in 1874 at Padstow, in Cornwall, by Mr. John Stribley. She is a handsomely-modelled craft, and very nicely masted, and she is said to be as good in all weathers as she looks. Captain W. H. M'Arthur is in command and reports that she sailed on the 17th instant, and had light winds and fine weather till the 21st at 10 a.m., when the wind came away fresh from S.W., and 24 hours afterwards the schooner was abreast of Green Cape, having gone at times 11 knots an hour. Off Bateman's Bay the wind died away, and later started from N.E.; but as the vessel was well off shore she managed to fetch into Jervis Bay. On Friday night at 9 o'clock she was off Crocodile Head, when the wind hauled S.W. The tug Lillian picked her up off Port Hacking on Saturday, and towed her to Neutral Bay. The Empress of India will to-day be berthed at Fagan's Wharf to discharge.

The fine iron clipper ship Benicia, from Liverpool with a general cargo, entered the Heads at 5 o'clock on Saturday morning, and after being passed by the health officer, brought up below Garden Island. The Benicia is owned by Messrs. Lowden, Edgar, and Co., of Liverpool, whose fleet includes the Greta, now on her way here, and other well known traders. She was built at Whitehaven by the Whitehaven Shipbuilding Company in 1883, and is an iron ship of 1810 tons register, with large carrying capacity and fair sailing power. Captain C. R. Taylor, who is in command, was last here in the Greta. He reports that the Benicia left Liverpool on June 5, and had light variable and contrary winds until crossing the parallel of lat. 47½ N. and long 12° W., whence the wind was moderate from N.W., N., and N.E. to lat. 27° N. Light variable winds and calms followed for several days, and were succeeded by the N.E. trades, which began on June 22 in lat. 25° N., and proved moderate to lat. 10° N. Thence light variable winds and calms were had to lat. 6° N., and fresh S.W. and southerly winds from thence to the Equator, which was crossed on July 8 in long. 30° W. There were no S.E. trades, southerly, and baffling winds prevailing. Cape Augustinho, on the coast of Brazil, was sighted on July 14, and S.E. and southerly winds were had from there to lat. 30° S. and long. 29° W. From August 9 till August 13, the wind was strong from the eastward, with a high cross sea between lat. 37° S. and long. 21° W., and lat. 41° S. and long. 12° W. The meridian of Greenwich was crossed on August 16 in lat. 41½° S., and south and S.E. winds prevailed from there to the eastward of the Cape of Good Hope. On August 23, when in lat. 39° S. and long. 23° E., the Benicia was assailed by a heavy easterly gale, attended with a very high sea, and from there to long. 83° E. and lat. 37½° south, she had a continuance of strong south-west and southerly gales; but although the decks were generally under water, the vessel sustained no damage. After that she had better weather, good N.W. to S.W. winds prevailing to the Leuwin, which was passed on September 12, on which day the vessel was struck by a fierce squall, but again escaped uninjured. N.W. and northerly winds followed to Tasman's, which was rounded on the 6th instant, and similar winds were met with afterwards till arrival.

The ship Brilliant, from London for Sydney, passed Cape Otway yesterday morning.

The steamer Australian left Clarence Heads at 5.45 p.m. on the 25th instant, and entered Sydney Heads at 9 p.m. on the 26th, having experienced fresh southerly winds, with dull weather, during the latter part of the passage. Cargo: 1270 bags maize, 79 hides, 1 pig, 7 coops poultry, 34 cases eggs, 2 bags horns, 5 bags bones, 40 bunches bananas, 8 hogsheads molasses, 18 cases syrup, 755 bags sugar, 421 pieces cedar and 12 logs, 1 cask tallow, 10 pieces hardwood, and sundries.

The R.M.S. Orient passed Breaksea Island, outwards, at 4.30 p.m. on Friday.

The barque Marmion, from Liverpool to Wellington, New Zealand, was spoken by the Benicia on August 8, in lat. 41.13° S., and long. 19.26° W.

The brig Wild Wave and the barque Manhegan were towed to Newcastle on Saturday night. The Wild Wave is to load coal for Auckland.

The barque Thurso, for Mauritius via Newcastle, was taken in tow for the latter port yesterday morning.

The barque Cloncaird, for Java, in ballast, was towed to sea yesterday morning.

The German gunboat Albatross took her departure for a cruise among the islands on Saturday afternoon, clearing the heads at 4.45. The crew cheered the other men-of-war as the Albatross was leaving, and the band of H.M.S. Nelson responded by playing "The Watch on the Rhine."

The Orient Company's R. M. S. Chimborazo left the harbour on Saturday afternoon for London, via Melbourne and Adelaide, with passengers and a general cargo. The steamer started from the moorings in Neutral Bay punctually at 1 p.m., and cleared the Heads three-quarters of an hour afterwards. Yesterday she was reported as having passed Gabo Island at 9.35 a.m.

A ship flying the signal letters M. B. R. C. passed Cape Otway at 9.15 a.m. on Saturday. She was bound to Sydney.

The China Navigation Company's steamship Whampoa left the harbour on Saturday for Newcastle. She is to be despatched hence for Hongkong via ports on Wednesday next.

The E. and A. Company's steamship Guthrie, from Hongkong for Sydney, via ports, arrived in Cooktown on Saturday, and left again the same evening.

The B. I. S. N. Company's steamship Flora, from Calcutta, via ports, left Brisbane on Saturday, and is therefore due here this morning.

The A. S. N. Company's steamer Glanworth met with a rather serious accident on Saturday at Brisbane, just before the hour fixed for her leaving for Northern ports. The sludge hole door suddenly burst out, allowing the water and steam to escape from the boilers, but fortunately no one was scalded, and the vessel was able to start on her voyage after a detention of over six hours.

The barque Queen of Cambria, from Hamburg, with a cargo of general merchandise, dropped anchor in Watson's Bay at a quarter to 9 o'clock last night, having been towed in by the Leveret. She left Hamburg on June 1, and has, therefore, been 117 days on the passage.

An accident occurred to the steamer Sikh (says the Argus) as she was being taken into the Alfred Graving Dock for cleaning and painting. The wind was blowing hard from the northward at the time when the steamer was taking the dock entrance, and not being under the control of the steamtug, she fell to leeward, and came in sharp contact with the angle of the stonework at the dock gate. Two of the plates on the port side were split just abaft the bluff of the port bow, and close to the waterline. The plates are dinted, and the splits are cross-wise. It is said that one of the frames is also broken. Temporary repairs will be effected here to the satisfaction of the engineer surveyor for the Marine Board and Lloyd's surveyors, and the Sikh will then proceed to Sydney, where there will be more time to spare for extended or additional repairs, if these should be considered necessary.

The steamship Yeoman arrived on Saturday from Gladstone with cattle, to discharge which she went up the Parramatta River to Drummoyne.

NORTH SHORE HORSE FERRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A few days ago I read in your columns a letter, signed "Resident of North Shore," complaining of the want of facilities for berthing the vehicular steamers of the North Shore Ferry Company at Macquarie Point. That remonstrance was mild in the extreme regarding the inconvenience and annoyance many of us daily suffer in passing from shore to shore, but hoped it would do some good, and this morning, seeing a pile-driving machine moored close to the landing at Macquarie Point, our hopes were brightened at the prospect that something was about to be done at last; but, alas! for our short-lived hopes, for, on inquiry, I was informed that three piles were to be put down by the Government for the accommodation of a coal-discharging vessel.

Sir, if indignation is to be roused, what could more justify it? The travelling public who use this ferry (representing the bridge) to be ignored and set aside for the want of a few piles, while a coal vessel is to be accommodated! Can the member for St. Leonards (Sir H. Parkes), who orally and in writing often advocated the building of a bridge which will take years to accomplish, know anything of this neglect? Some time ago £40,000 was to be spent for steam punts, and I am told that a few hundred pounds, or perhaps much less, would accomplish all that is now wanted, viz., a few strong piles put down at Macquarie Point to securely berth the large steam punt built about six months ago by the ferry company, which we see every day lying idle at Milson's Point, a punt that will carry 35 or 40 vehicles. I presume that the Government are to blame for the apathy shewn in not perfecting the communication, for the landing at Macquarie Point is Government property, whilst on the North Shore side the property of the company the opposite is shown; for not only is there (as before stated) a grand steam punt, but an extension of dolphin piles for docking her, and extra facilities given for the vehicular trade by the making of an additional and easy road.

I am afraid I have exceeded ordinary space, yet I venture to hope that you will not shut out the advocacy of the grievance complained of—a grievance revived by the attention paid to the unloading of a collier and neglecting the floating bridge, which means disregarding the convenience of thousands of travellers to and from the North Shore.

I am not a shareholder in the ferry company, but affirm that the interest of the Shore have been advanced more by them than by the Government or borough councils.

I am, &c.,

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; n, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'n, the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour, next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Ea, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Re, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; WP, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; CG Jervis Bay, Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; PM, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following.

The Wellesley Lode Tin-mining Company, near Stanthorpe (says the Darling Downs Gazette), have at last struck upon what appears to be a fully-defined and permanent lode in their No. 2 workings. A sample of ore obtained has been shown us, and differs entirely in appearance from anything we have previously seen, it being impregnated with sulphur, which is generally found in the true lode. The hill in which this company is prospecting seems to be covered with a "boil over" or casing of tin ore some three or four feet thick, with veins or blows of rich ore continually shooting out from the main lode or lodes, and, before deciding where to sink a shaft, it was necessary to cross-cube in several places. This has been done, with the result above mentioned. Sinking operations will shortly be commenced.

The Walcha correspondent of the Armidale Express says that the trial crushing of the Tia reefs is completed, and the following notice has been posted up in the office at Walcha:—"'September 17. Payable gold has been discovered on the Tia River, situated on the north side of M'Leod's Creek, at 25 feet from the surface, with a deposit of quartz. The yield was 20oz. of gold to 20 tons of stone.' The ground is dry, and the nature of the deposit in which the gold is found is decayed quartz. The width of the reef is 8 feet, running about N.E. by S.W. J. Jerry and five others are the prospectors who have given the above report. I have seen Mr. Jerry, who informs me that the reef in question is situated on a barren-looking ridge about a quarter of a mile to the eastward of the reef on which Matthewson and M'Intyre have been working for some years past. The party have been prospecting in the locality for the last three or four months. They first discovered a reef of hard gold-bearing quartz on the ridge above mentioned, and pegged out a six-acre claim. They afterwards discovered the soft or 'mullocky' reef, a little distance further to the eastward, and took up a claim of four acres on it. There has been a considerable number of claims pegged off all along the line of this last reef, and Mr. A. J. Smith has 'struck it' some considerable distance to the north of the prospectors' claim. During last week there was a great deal of excitement over this new gold discovery, but it is too soon to give an opinion of the extent of the workable ground. There is, however, no mistake about the gold being there, for I have seen a piece about 7ozs., and very nice looking gold it is. If these reefs turn out well it will be a great boon to the district, and will cause a change from the dull times we have had here for months past."

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

New Burrangong Company, Young.—No change to report, everything working well. Expect to be ready to rise for gutter in a fortnight.

New Reform Gold-mining Company, Limited, Lucknow, 24th September.—During the fortnight I have raised 130 tons, crushed 105 tons, and thrown out 14 tons stone, and have 83 bars of ore on hand ready for shipment. The faces are all on the usual class of stone for concentration. The water lodgement below the 400-feet level is now complete, and will hold 24 hours' coming water in the event of the pumps going wrong at any time. The main underground machinery chamber will now be cut out on the 400-feet level, which will occupy three or four weeks; the level sent in to the joint opened out south, and sinking main workings resumed to intersect Perseverance and Industry veins. New machinery erections and other contracts progressing very satisfactorily; dams all full; and another dividend (being the second this month) of 6d. per share on 60,000 is payable on the 29th instant. Chimborazo shipment, May 1, 1886, just to hand; insured for £1150, realised £1423 3s. 11d. net.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

BRISBANE, SATURDAY.

Three weeks' crushing from the North Glanmire claim, Gympie, yielded 810oz gold. A dividend of 1s. has been declared. 203 tons from No. 2 Lady Mary yielded 271oz.

Ten tons of stone from the recently discovered goldfield at Mount Shamrock, Degelbo, crushed at Gympie, yielded 8 loz. of gold.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE. BEECHAM'S PILLS are admitted by thousands to be worth above a Guinea a box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in 20 minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these pills, and they will be acknowledged to be WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all humours, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal Beecham's Pills for removing any obstruction or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver, they act like "magic," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs of the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with a Rosebud of Health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "facts" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society; and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous and Debilitated is Beecham's Pills have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

Full directions are given with each box. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers throughout the colonies.

The Petitioners state that they are persons who, upon incorporation, would be liable to be assessed for Municipal rates in respect of property or household residence.

KILL THE INSECTS AND THEIR EGGS with Clayton and Co.'s Great American Insect Exterminator. It paralyses the first touch and then kills. If blown into their haunts (crevices), or where their eggs are laid, death is instantaneous for Beetles, Ants, Silver-fish, or any other insect. It is perfectly harmless to birds or animals, and may be placed under the wing of a pet canary and rubbed on dogs, cats, or monkeys, killing the parasites that infest them. If burnt in a room or in a camp it kills flies or mosquitoes. If placed on window sills you can see the large "blow-fly," as well the common fly, give up the ghost. If placed under the edges of carpets, silver-fish and all other insect vermin die. It is used in the mattresses and bedsteads of all the hotels and steamboats in the United States and this colony. Sold everywhere in tins 1s and 1s 3d, and in large boxes 1s 6d. In large cannons (to blow into crevices) 1s 6d each. Wholesale and retail, WASHINGTON H. SOUL and CO., 177, 268, 266, Pitt-street. HERBERT-TERRACE, consisting of
ELEVEN WELL-BUILT HOUSES, producing a rental of £440 14s per annum.
Leasehold title, having about 96 years to run at a ground rent of £75 per annum.

MILLS and PILE have been instructed to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, 130, Pitt-street, NEXT THURSDAY, the 30th September, at 11.30,
HERBERT-TERRACE,
consisting of
ELEVEN HOUSES, built of brick on stone, slate roofs, each containing 4 rooms, kitchen, washhouse, verandah, balcony, &c., on land having 150 feet frontage to Henderson-road, with a depth of 100 feet to a lane at the rear. In a thickly populated and important industrial locality close to the Eveleigh and Erskineville Stations.

N.B.—This is a grand chance for a person with say £1200 to £1500 to invest; the net income, after paying ground rent and taxes, is £329. Part of the purchase money (£1600) can remain at 7 per cent., so that, if a person pays say £3000 for the property, a net income of £227, or over 16 per cent. per annum, would result from an outlay of £1400.
P.S.—If bought for less money the income will be larger in proportion.

THE CORNER HOUSE, Nelson and Queen streets, contains 10 rooms, kitchen, laundry, 2 bathrooms, paved yard, and every convenience for a large family or first-class boarding-house; lets at £13 per month.

N.B.—Just to give some idea of the income to be derived from this property, we will state a case for the consideration of trustees and others. Suppose it can be bought for, say, £7000, and £3000 of the purchase money can remain at 7 per cent. per annum, it will yield an annual income of £470 11s 3d, equal to nearly 12 per cent. upon the outlay of £4000—A SPLENDID INVESTMENT, particularly when the quality, newness, position, and constant tenancy of the houses is considered.
P.S.—If bought for less than £7000, the income will of course be proportionately larger.

at WAVERLEY,
commanding EXTENSIVE VIEWS of land and water scenery, within easy distance of the METROPOLIS, yet removed from all the noise and bustle of city life.

N.B.—THE NATURAL SHAPE and lay of the LAND presents facilities for lessening, if desired, the area of the property as a residence, and for the advantageous subdivision of portion not required.

A PLAN SHOWING PALMERSTON AS A WHOLE IS ON VIEW AT THE SALEROOMS, and Mr. Surveyor C. A. Atchison has prepared a plan showing how the property may be dealt with in subdivision.
Inspection may be made upon production of CARDS to VIEW, obtainable from the Auctioneers only.
